MISS EDERLE SWIMS ENGLISH CHANNEL

FIRST WOMAN TO NEGOTIATE DIFFICULT FEAT

LANDS AT DEAL, 7 MILES NORTH OF DOVER, AT 9:39 P. M.

DARKNESS FALLING AND FLARES GUIDE HER TO GOAL

King's Down, England, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle today swam across the English Channel — a stretch of water, which in all recorded history never before had been conquered by a woman.

Gertrude stepped ashore at 9:39 P. M., exactly 14 hours and a half, entering the water at Cape Gris Nez at 7:09 A. M.

TIDE IS WITH THE SWIMMER

Cape Gris Nez, France, Aug 6.—A boat believed to be the Alsace, which was accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel was sighted at 8:20 P. M. today about six miles from Dover and making in the general direction of that port. If Gertrude is with the boat, she now has the tide with her.

At 4:30 P. M. Gertrude had surpassed her last year's effort when she left the water after 8½ hours off Goodwin Sands

At 4:30 she was fighting hard in a strong wind and at 5:10 a hard rain made conditions disheartening. Louis Timson of Boston joined Gertrude in the water at 5 P. M. It appeared that Gertrude might be able to make land if she could hold out until the flood tide about 9 P. M.

DIFFICULT TO SEE THE TUGS

St. Margaret's Bay, England, Aug. 6.—At 8:45 P. M. today Gertrude Ederle apparently was about two miles off this point and drifting northward. Darkness was falling and it was difficult to see the tugs.

At 9:30 P. M. tonight Gertrude Ederle's tug, the Alsace, was only a few hundred yards off shore, blowing the whistle and blue and red flares were burning on the beach

Cape Gris Nez, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Making good progress and swimming fast, Miss Gertrude Ederle, American girl swimmer, was today plowing across the waters of the English Channel toward the cliff of Dover.

At 12:40 P. M. she was 10½ miles from the French coast, having swam 13 miles. A sun was beginning to break through the heavily overcast skies.

Conditions today were considerably better for the channel swim than when the American miss made the attempt almost a year ago.

As the wind swung around to the southwest and the sea became more agitated, Miss Ederle began to appear annoyed at the shift in weather.

When the wind changed she was 5½ miles from the French coast.

As the escort tug, Alsace, followed the girl swimmer, a French boat, the Nicole Shiasfino, exchanged salutes wth the escort vessel, the French crew cheering Miss Ederle.

Miss Ederle had retired early last night. Burgess expressed the opinion that she was in fine condition and was confident she would be the first woman to swim the channel.

She arrived at the shore in a taxicab this morning. The air was chilly but the young swimmer did not seem to notice the cool of the day as she disappeared into a garage for her final greasing.

Miss Ederle was rubbed with a mixture of vaseline and lanolin. Instead of a one-piece bathing suit she wore slips with the emblem of the Women's Swimming Association and a small American flag on the chest.

Adjusting heavy goggles as she came out of the garage, Miss Ederle strolled confidently to the water. Spectators and cameramen awaited her there and they exchanged greetings.

"I'll make it this time," she predicted as she strolled to the shore.

Lillian Cannon, American girl swimmer, shook hands with Miss Ederle on the beach and wished her luck.

Bill Burges, her trainer, kissed Miss Ederle on the cheek as she started to enter the water. Cries of farewell and shouted good wishes came from the crowd as Miss Ederle waded out, walking on the bottom until the water was up to her neck. Then she began swimming, with Burgess accompanying her. The tug moved on with the swimmers and the row boat, manned by oarsmen, took up its long course. An American and a French flag flew from the smaller craft.

GERTRUDE'S LOG

7:02 A. M.—Gertrude stepped into the water, waded out breast deep and began to swim toward England.

8:02 A. M.—About 1½ miles off shore, sea calm, sky hazy and storm clouds off England.

10:35 A. M.—Gertrude's position was 5½ miles from the French coast. Agitation of the sea seemed to annoy the swimmer. There was a southwest wind.

11:15 A. M.—Gertrude was swimming northward 6½ miles off the French coast at about two miles an hour. The current was pushing her northward.

12:50 P. M.—Gertrude was 10½ miles from the French coast and still benefitting from the tide. She had been in the water 5 hours and 41 minutes, during which she swam 13 miles, the extra mileage being necessitated by channel currents, which prevent swimming in a direct line.

1:40 P. M.—Gertrude was 12 miles from the French coast after 6 hours, 31 minutes in the water.

3:10 P. M.—Gertrude was 6½ miles off the English coast and going good. Lillian Cannon of Baltimore, joined her in the water.

5:39 P. M.—Gertrude was tiring and the tide was sweeping her down the coast. She ate sugar to add to her strength in an effort to stick it out until the flood tide, expected at 9 P. M.

Aboard United Press Tug La Morinie, accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle had glimpsed the white cliffs of Dover with their beckoning promise of fame and fortune today at 11:39, 4½ hours after she entered the water at Cape Gris Nez in an effort to become the first woman to swim the English Channel.

The swimmer and all on board were greatly heartened by the clear vision of chalky cliffs.

"Gee, it looks close," shouted Gertrude.

At 11:39 Gertrude was seven miles northeast of Cape Gris Nez swimming easily.

Gertrude used her famous crawl stroke and was making good if leisurely progress at 9:09 A. M. today, two hours after entering the water at 7:09. The sea was slightly scarred with white caps. A second tug joined the channel party, carrying photographers and reporters to record the American girl's effort.

At 9:39 Gertrude was cutting nicely across the slow tide water, which was much rougher than during the early hours of her last year's attempt.

Gertrude reached mid-channel at noon, having progressed slightly more than nine miles. Friends from aboard the Alsace, which is Gertrude's tug, frequently went over the side and sang, and Gertrude clowned and splashed them, apparently enjoying herself.

At 12:02, five hours after entering the water, Gertrude stopped swimming for a 15-minute rest period and took her first nourishment, beef broth and cold chicken.

Margaret Ederle plunged in to accompany her sister.

FEDERAL DRY AGENTS SEIZE 73 STILLS IN JULY

St. Paul, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Federal prohibition agents in Minnesota broke all records for seizure of illicit stills in any state in one month, during July, it was revealed by reports of Maj. B. B. Wilcox, made public Thursday night.

During the month the dry agents seized 73 stills with a total capacity of 7,780 gallons. This is an average of two a day. In addition to the stills seized 4,264 gallons of alcohol and moonshine were taken; 225 gallons of malt liquors; 370 gallons of wine; 53,747 gallons of mash and 650 gallons of fruit mash.

Six automobiles together with 583 fermenting vats were also taken.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Under cover agents of the federal prohibition unit have ben ordered to round up all druggists and physicians suspected of diverting medicinal whisky into bootleg channels. New York City and Sioux City, Ia., agents already have begun clean-ups in their districts.

The sleuths have been told to stop prescription bootlegging and the selling of "Kut" medicinal whisky by drug stores. Investigations by government detectives showed that a few unscrupulous drug stores have been watering liquor and selling half of it to thirsty customers and dispensing the rest on genuine prescriptions.

Thousands of gallons of medicinal liquors leaked into the hands of illicit rum trusts every year, prohibition officials admitted today. While this is only a minor source of supply for bootleggers, a vigorous effort to plug the leak is to be made at once.

Dry detectives have been assigned to prohibition adminstrators for this special work. All prescriptions will be carefully checked to see if they confirm with provisions of the law.

Meantime samples of liquor handled by druggists are being taken by special prohibition agents assigned to this work. The samples will be analyzed by government chemists and drug stores found selling "Kut" whisky on prescriptions probably will lose their licenses to deal in medicinal liquors.

The policy of the prohibition unit is to assure pure and unadulterated liquor for medicinal needs and at the same time prevent the genuine pre-Volstead product from reaching the bootleg market.

Salem, Ky., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Rescuers were making frantic efforts here today to reach five men entombed in the Hudson mine near here. The men were trapped about 9 p. m. Thursday when the level on which they were working suddenly opened up and water started pouring in through the roof.

Albert Lea, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—When the automobile in which they were riding plunged into Fountain lake L. H. Hallock almost lost his life trying to rescue his wife who is believed to be suffering from a broken back.

Mrs. Hallock has been in an unconscious condition since the accident.

The couple, who had been married but three months, were starting their vacation.

EVOLUTION SEES DEFEAT IN TENNESSEE

VOTERS AT PRIMARY THERE GIVE IT A SMASHING BLOW

LAWYER CANDIDATE HEADING SCOPES' DEFENSE IS FAR BEHIND IN RACE

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Evolution suffered a smashing defeat at the hands of the voters of Tennessee in the primary yesterday. Early this morning, Governor Austin Peay, seeking re-election, and Hill McAllister, state treasurer, were running a neck and neck race, with Dr. John Neal, lawyer, who headed the Scopes' defense n the Dayton "monkey trial," trailing far behind. McAllster sponsored Tennessee's law prohibiting teaching of evolution in the schools. Peay supported the law enthusiastically. McAllister was slightly ahead of Peay on incomplete returns from 2,119 precincts. The vote stood: McAllister, 63,437; Peay, 60,584. Supporters of the governor predicted he would overtake McAllister and smash the Tennessee precedents against a third term for governor.

BROKEN NOSE AND $50 FINE

Swift Falls, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—A broken nose and a fine of $50 resulted from pugilistic tendencies exhibited at a dance here. Berent Simonson was the recipient of the former and Ernest Archer of Murdock the donor of the latter. They were taken to Benson, one to the hospital and the other to the jail. At a hearing before Justice Gallagher Archer was fined $50.

BROKER DIES, SHOT ON STREET BY A MANIAC

E. H. PARR IS THE VICTIM, NOW CLAIMED TO BE WIFE DESERTER

TELEGRAM FROM MINNEAPOLIS SENT TO POLICE OF CHICAGO

Chicago, Aug. 6.—(UP)—E. H. Parr, 33-year-old broker who died Thursday, after being shot on the street by a maniac, deserted his wife in Minneapolis recently, a telegram police received from the Minnesota city today, declared.

The telegram which purported to come from Parr's wife, said the woman who was injured while she walked by his side, was an imposter. Parr had identified her as his wife, Emma. She is recovering from her injuries in a Chicago hospital.

Parr and the woman were shot on Monday night as they walked along a crowded North Side street, by Fletcher T. Andrews, 30, an employe of a securities investment house.

Fletcher T. Andrews was later declared insane.

The Minneapolis message instructed police to hold Parr's body until his wife could attend to its disposition.

The telegram received today read: "Hold body and effects of Edward H. Parr, who was shot and killed Sunday night by a man who ran amuck in a theatre crowd. If this is E. H. Parr, recently of Minneapolis, about 34, partly gray, stock and bond salesman, the woman claiming to be Mrs. Parr and who was also shot, is an imposter. Edward H. Carr recently deserted his wife here. Will advise disposition of body.

MIDDLE WEST SWELTERS IN HEAT WAVE

HAS BLANKETED THE WHOLE DISTRICT FOR THREE DAYS

15 LIVES LOST IN CHICAGO DUE TO EXTREMELY HOT WEATHER

Chicago, Aug. 6—(UP)—Forecasters today promised little relief for the middle west from the heat wave, which has blanketed the district for three days.

Indications this morning were that most of the territory was still suffering from high temperatures although Chicago benefitted from a stiff lake breeze which lowered the temperature into the 70's. The government observers, however, expect the temperature to climb back to its high level before nightfall.

The heat wave thus far has caused a loss of 15 lives in Chicago, 10 succumbing yesterday to the temperature.

After sweltering all day with the thermometer hovering around 100, Wichita, Kas., yesterday experienced the highest temperature in the history of its weather bureau when the mercury touched 104 at 5 P. M. Similar high readings prevailed throughout the whole of Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Iowa.

Much damage was done to standing corn by the baking sun in Kansas, a sun which has shone without interruption by rain for weeks.

In Chicago where the temperature reached a maximum of 91 degrees, numerous prostrations were recorded in addition to the 15 deaths. Fourteen people were bitten by heat crazed dogs. Sveral prisoners collapsed in the Cook county jail, where windows have been nailed down because of recent attempts at escape.

While the United States was suffering from the intense heat, the district surrounding Regina, Sask., was struck by its heaviest hail storm in years. Immense hail stones did thousands of dollars damage to crops, buildings and telegraph wires. Near Grayburn, Sask., roofs were taken from houses and trees uprooted.

COMPLETES 43 YEARS CONTINUOUS SCHOOL TEACHING

Willmar, Minn., Aug 6.—(UP)—Prof. S. Hatlestad today completed 43 years continuous teaching in the parochial school at First East Norway Lake parish, near here.

This is believed to be almost a new record for length of service in any one school. In the years since 1883 when he began his teaching career, Hatlestad has given instruction to more than 1,000 public pupils.

The veteran teacher at a celebration in his honor was presented with a purse of $50 in gold by his friends.

MILLIONS SPENT IN THE PRIMARIES IN ILLINOIS AND PA.

CHAIRMAN JIM REED ANNOUNCES HE WOULD REST UPON EVIDENCE

SENATE COMMITTEE CONTEMPLATES NO FURTHER STATE INVESTIGATIONS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Aug. 6—Having disclosed $3,000,000 spent in the Pennsylvania primary and $1,000,000 in the Illinois primary, Chairman Jim Reed of the senate investigating committee today announced he would rest upon his evidence and contemplates no further state investigations.

"I am satisfied with the evidence as it is," he declared as he quit the 12 days' probe of Illinois politics and left for his home. "I have no comment to make."

But Illinois politicians and followers of the senate investigation were considering the situation which Reed left behind him here and in his Pennsylvania investigation.

Despite talk of an independent candidate, it is known definitely that William S. Vare, Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, Illinois, republican senatorial nominees in their respective states, will fight out their difficulties at the polls with the democrats in November and that they will not consider withdrawing.

The immediate question of the committee is concerning the refusal of three witnesses to tell facts concerning which the committee asked. When the senate meets in December, Reed said he would produce records against Samuel Insull, utility magnat, Samuel Schuyler, his attorney and worker; Thomas Cunningham, Philadelphia court clerk, who declined to answer questions. The senate may cite the designated witnesses for contempt and refer their cases to the federal prosecuting authorities for action in contempt or it can dismiss the proceedings.

No matter how this phase of the inquiry develops it is considered unlikely that some contest may not be instituted against Vare and Smith if they are winners of their respective races against the democrats in November.

William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor, and George Brennan, controller of Illinois democracy, are opposed to Vare and Smith respectively and the matter developed by the investigators is expected to be used extensively in their behalf.

Aside from the direct political developments disclosed by Reed, he has registered discord in the Anti-Saloon League in both states and the nation, which is expected to be the basis for the wet onslaught against the dry majority in congress.

BODY OF DROWNED GIRL IS RECOVERED

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Police late Thursday recovered the body of Jeanette Bruxvoort, 11, who drowned while playing with her cousin, Malix Bruxvoort, in the waters of Red Lake river near the Bruxvoort farm, three miles south of here.

Jeanette essayed too far out into the river and stepping off a drop-off sank from view. Malis summoned a nearby farmer who sought vainly to recover the body.

The body was brought out of the river by George Miethke of Crookston, who located it by repeated diving, after police dragging with grappling hooks had failed.

DIPLOMATS SO TERM STRUGGLE IN MEXICO

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICAN STATESMEN DO NOT WISH TO INTERVENE

REPORTED ALSO THAT SOME WOULDN'T RELISH ACTING AS MEDIATORS

By A. W. FOLGER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, Aug. 6.—A canvas of Central American and South American diplomatic sections here made by the United Press showed a majority of diplomats support the view point of the Mexican government that the religious controversy is a domestic affair and that other powers have no right to intervene.

Two prominent South American diplomats believe that under no circumstances would their governments do anything toward mediating in the controversy and the entire spirit revealed by the United Press canvas indicated that other Latin Americans would be slow to attempt mediation.

The fact that such mediation is not imminent emphasized the stalemate reached in the struggle between church and state. Observers here believe the situation can only be solved by one of two means, either forcibly by means of the Catholic boycott of luxuries or through a political solution in ultimate presidential elections.

Meanwhile the heat of the controversy in the capital at least is waning, although a constant stream of reports and rumors regarding minor clashes come from the interior.

MEXICAN DELEGATES TO K. C. TO REMAIN HERE

Philadelphia, Aug. 5. — Mexican delegates to the Knights of Columbus convention which denounced the Mexican govenment's religious policy will remain in this country, religious exiles. The men, Edelmiro Trashlosheros, a civil engineer, Mariano Alcocer, an attorney, and Francisco Arrieta-Viczano, a manufacturer, all of Mexico City, represented their 6,000 fellow knights in the southern republic at the sessions. As the other 500 delegates prepared to leave for their homes, the three decided to "wander together," until improvement in the religious crisis enabled them to return to Mexico in safety.

The Knights of Columbus by resolution yesterday suggested that the American government interest itself in the Mexican situatfon.

NOTE TO MEXICO TEMPORARILY HELD UP

Washington, Aug. 6.—A note to the Mexican government on disputed American oil and propery rights and other non-religious matters, prepared jointly by the state department and Ambassador Sheffield at Mexico City is being held up temporarily for fear its delivery may be interpreted in certain quarters in the United States as interference in the Mexican religious conflict, which this government desires to avoid.

LAD OF 8 TRAPPED IN SAND CAVEIN AND IS SUFFOCATED

Austin, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—While playing in the city camp here today John Ulich, 8, was trapped in a sand cavein and suffocated, and his twin brother Raymond and Harold Jensen, a playmate, were injured.

The latter two boys were rescued by Jack Steffanson, a truck driver, who saw the accident. Frantic efforts were made to rescue John, but the body was lifeless when workmen finally succeeded in removing the huge pile of sand.

FLAMES TRAP 13 NATIVES AND BURN THEM TO DEATH

Cape Town, South Africa, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Flames swept an area approximately five miles square today at Illavo, near Durban, trapping 13 natives who were burned to death. Several planters were ruined by the destruction of 2,000 acres of sugar cane.

ST. CLOUD ELKS STATE CONVENTION TO COVER PERIOD AUGUST 11-13

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN FOR 18 COMPETITIVE EVENTS SCHEDULED

LED BY BAND AND DRUM CORPS 24 LODGES TO BE REPRESENTED

Led by bands and drum corps, delegates and members from the 24 Elk lodges in Minnesota will assemble at St. Cloud August 11, 12 and 13 for their twenty-second annual state convention.

Besides business meetings at which new officers are to be elected, F. X. Beaver, secretary of St. Cloud No. 516 and secretary of the convention committee, has announced that there will be a parade, a ritualistic contest, sight-seeing trips, banquets, dancing and more than 18 competitive events for which St. Cloud lodge has offered prizes of from $15 to $250 each.

Ball Team to Get Prize

Prizes will be awarded to the winning ball team, to the largest delegation in the parade, to the best parade appearance and for the three best floats, drill teams, drum corps, clown bands and bands.

The Minneapolis Elks No. 44 band led by William Warvelle Nelson, and the St. Paul Drum and Bugle Corps, with Gerald Cannon as drum-major, will be at the convention. Both won first place in their class at the Grand Lodge reunion in Chicago.

Brainerd will be represented by its Ladies' band. Other lodges which will have bands include: Owatonna, Red Wing, Mankato and Stillwater. In addition, practically every lodge in the state will send a marching club, drill team or drum corps, as reported by Secretary Beaver.

New Officers to Be Elected

The ritualistic committee of the association has chosen Austin to represent the southern Minnesota jurisdiction and Brainerd northern Minnesota. The two teams will meet in the lodge room at 8 P. M. on the first day of the convention to vie for state championship honors and the silver cup.

John E. Regan, who has been president of Minnesota Elks for the last three years, and James R. Jerrard, treasurer, will resign, so that new officers must be elected at the business session, Aug. 11.

Delegates to Tour District

Included among the speakers will be William C. Robertson, of the Grand Lodge committee on social and community welfare, John C. Price of Columbus, past grand exalted ruler of the order; Fred C. Robinson, grand secretary; Judge Mathias Baldwin, district deputy for Minnesota North and Leonard C. Seamer, district deputy for Minnesota South.

The third day, which is not a convention day proper, will be given over to sightseeing. Among the places to be visited are the St. Cloud granite quarries and cutting plants; the United States veterans' hospital, erected at a cost of a million and a half dollars; the Minnesota state reformatory; the state teachers' college; the Bar pickling plant and the Watab paper mill, where 80 tons of book paper are turned out daily. Special programs of entertainment are being arranged for the wives of the delegates.

EVOLUTION SEES DEFEAT IN TENNESSEE

VOTERS AT PRIMARY THERE GIVE IT A SMASHING BLOW

LAWYER CANDIDATE HEADING SCOPES' DEFENSE IS FAR BEHIND IN RACE

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Evolution suffered a smashing defeat at the hands of the voters of Tennessee in the primary yesterday. Early this morning, Governor Austin Peay, seeking re-election, and Hill McAllister, state treasurer, were running a neck and neck race, with Dr. John Neal, lawyer, who headed the Scopes' defense n the Dayton "monkey trial," trailing far behind. McAlister sponsored Tennessee's law prohibiting teaching of evolution in the schools. Peay supported the law enthusiastically. McAllister was slightly ahead of Peay on incomplete returns from 2,119 precincts. The vote stood: McAllister, 63,437; Peay, 60,584. Supporters of the governor predicted he would overtake McAllister and smash the Tennessee precedents against a third term for governor.

BROKEN NOSE AND $50 FINE

Swift Falls, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—A broken nose and a fine of $50 resulted from pugilistic tendencies exhibited at a dance here. Berent Simonson was the recipient of the former and Ernest Archer of Murdock the donor of the latter. They were taken to Benson, one to the hospital and the other to the jail. At a hearing before Justice Gallagher Archer was fined $50.

BROKER DIES, SHOT ON STREET BY A MANIAC

E. H. PARR IS THE VICTIM, NOW CLAIMED TO BE WIFE DESERTER

TELEGRAM FROM MINNEAPOLIS SENT TO POLICE OF CHICAGO

Chicago, Aug. 6.—(UP)—E. H. Parr, 33-year-old broker who died Thursday, after being shot on the street by a maniac, deserted his wife in Minneapolis recently, a telegram police received from the Minnesota city today, declared.

The telegram which purported to come from Parr's wife, said the woman who was injured while she walked by his side, was an imposter. Parr had identified her as his wife, Emma. She is recovering from her injuries in a Chicago hospital.

Parr and the woman were shot on Monday night as they walked along a crowded North Side street, by Fletcher T. Andrews, 30, an employe of a securities investment house.

Fletcher T. Andrews was later declared insane.

The Minneapolis message instructed police to hold Parr's body until his wife could attend to its disposition.

The telegram received today read: "Hold body and effects of Edward H. Parr, who was shot and killed Sunday night by a man who ran amuck in a theatre crowd. If this is E. H. Parr, recently of Minneapolis, about 34, partly gray, stock and bond salesman, the woman claiming to be Mrs. Parr and who was also shot, is an imposter. Edward H. Carr recently deserted his wife here. Will advise disposition of body.

" Mrs. E. H. Parr, 400 19th Ave. Northeast, Minneapolis, Minn."

MIDDLE WEST SWELTERS IN HEAT WAVE

HAS BLANKETED THE WHOLE DISTRICT FOR THREE DAYS

15 LIVES LOST IN CHICAGO DUE TO EXTREMELY HOT WEATHER

Chicago, Aug. 6—(UP)—Forecasters today promised little relief for the middle west from the heat wave, which has blanketed the district for three days.

Indications this morning were that most of the territory was still suffering from high temperatures although Chicago benefitted from a stiff lake breeze which lowered the temperature into the 70's. The government observers, however, expect the temperature to climb back to its high level before nightfall.

The heat wave thus far has caused a loss of 15 lives in Chicago, 10 succumbing yesterday to the temperature.

After sweltering all day with the thermometer hovering around 100, Wichita, Kas., yesterday experienced the highest temperature in the history of its weather bureau when the mercury touched 104 at 5 P. M. Similar high readings prevailed throughout the whole of Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Iowa.

Much damage was done to standing corn by the baking sun in Kansas, a sun which has shone without interruption by rain for weeks.

In Chicago where the temperature reached a maximum of 91 degrees, numerous prostrations were recorded in addition to the 15 deaths. Fourteen people were bitten by heat crazed dogs. Sveral prisoners collapsed in the Cook county jail, where windows have been nailed down because of recent attempts at escape.

While the United States was suffering from the intense heat, the district surrounding Regina, Sask., was struck by its heaviest hail storm in years. Immense hail stones did thousands of dollars damage to crops, buildings and telegraph wires. Near Grayburn, Sask., roofs were taken from houses and trees uprooted.

COMPLETES 43 YEARS CONTINUOUS SCHOOL TEACHING

Willmar, Minn., Aug 6.—(UP)—Prof. S. Hatlestad today completed 43 years continuous teaching in the parochial school at First East Norway Lake parish, near here.

This is believed to be almost a new record for length of service in any one school. In the years since 1883 when he began his teaching career, Hatlestad has given instruction to more than 1,000 public pupils.

The veteran teacher at a celebration in his honor was presented with a purse of $50 in gold by his friends.

MILLIONS SPENT IN THE PRIMARIES IN ILLINOIS AND PA.

CHAIRMAN JIM REED ANNOUNCES HE WOULD REST UPON EVIDENCE

SENATE COMMITTEE CONTEMPLATES NO FURTHER STATE INVESTIGATIONS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Aug. 6—Having disclosed $3,000,000 spent in the Pennsylvania primary and $1,000,000 in the Illinois primary, Chairman Jim Reed of the senate investigating committee today announced he would rest upon his evidence and contemplates no further state investigations.

"I am satisfied with the evidence as it is," he declared as he quit the 12 days' probe of Illinois politics and left for his home. "I have no comment to make."

But Illinois politicians and followers of the senate investigation were considering the situation which Reed left behind him here and in his Pennsylvania investigation.

Despite talk of an independent candidate, it is known definitely that William S. Vare, Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, Illinois, republican senatorial nominees in their respective states, will fight out their difficulties at the polls with the democrats in November and that they will not consider withdrawing.

The immediate question of the committee is concerning the refusal of three witnesses to tell facts concerning which the committee asked. When the senate meets in December, Reed said he would produce records against Samuel Insull, utility magnat, Samuel Schuyler, his attorney and worker; Thomas Cunningham, Philadelphia court clerk, who declined to answer questions. The senate may cite the designated witnesses for contempt and refer their cases to the federal prosecuting authorities for action in contempt or it can dismiss the proceedings.

No matter how this phase of the inquiry develops it is considered unlikely that some contest may not be instituted against Vare and Smith if they are winners of their respective races against the democrats in November.

William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor, and George Brennan, controller of Illinois democracy, are opposed to Vare and Smith respectively and the matter developed by the investigators is expected to be used extensively in their behalf.

Aside from the direct political developments disclosed by Reed, he has registered discord in the Anti-Saloon League in both states and the nation, which is expected to be the basis for the wet onslaught against the dry majority in congress.

BODY OF DROWNED GIRL IS RECOVERED

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Police late Thursday recovered the body of Jeanette Bruxvoort, 11, who drowned while playing with her cousin, Malix Bruxvoort, in the waters of Red Lake river near the Bruxvoort farm, three miles south of here.

Jeanette essayed too far out into the river and stepping off a drop-off sank from view. Malis summoned a nearby farmer who sought vainly to recover the body.

The body was brought out of the river by George Miethke of Crookston, who located it by repeated diving, after police dragging with grappling hooks had failed.

DIPLOMATS SO TERM STRUGGLE IN MEXICO

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICAN STATESMEN DO NOT WISH TO INTERVENE

REPORTED ALSO THAT SOME WOULDN'T RELISH ACTING AS MEDIATORS

By A. W. FOLGER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, Aug. 6.—A canvas of Central American and South American diplomatic sections here made by the United Press showed a majority of diplomats support the view point of the Mexican government that the religious controversy is a domestic affair and that other powers have no right to intervene.

Two prominent South American diplomats believe that under no circumstances would their governments do anything toward mediating in the controversy and the entire spirit revealed by the United Press canvas indicated that other Latin Americans would be slow to attempt mediation.

The fact that such mediation is not imminent emphasized the stalemate reached in the struggle between church and state. Observers here believe the situation can only be solved by one of two means, either forcibly by means of the Catholic boycott of luxuries or through a political solution in ultimate presidential elections.

Meanwhile the heat of the controversy in the capital at least is waning, although a constant stream of reports and rumors regarding minor clashes come from the interior.

MEXICAN DELEGATES TO K. C. TO REMAIN HERE

Philadelphia, Aug. 5. — Mexican delegates to the Knights of Columbus convention which denounced the Mexican govenment's religious policy will remain in this country, religious exiles. The men, Edelmiro Trashlosheros, a civil engineer, Mariano Alcocer, an attorney, and Francisco Arrieta-Viczano, a manufacturer, all of Mexico City, represented their 6,000 fellow knights in the southern republic at the sessions. As the other 500 delegates prepared to leave for their homes, the three decided to "wander together," until improvement in the religious crisis enabled them to return to Mexico in safety.

The Knights of Columbus by resolution yesterday suggested that the American government interest itself in the Mexican situatfon.

NOTE TO MEXICO TEMPORARILY HELD UP

Washington, Aug. 6.—A note to the Mexican government on disputed American oil and propery rights and other non-religious matters, prepared jointly by the state department and Ambassador Sheffield at Mexico City is being held up temporarily for fear its delivery may be interpreted in certain quarters in the United States as interference in the Mexican religious conflict, which this government desires to avoid.

LAD OF 8 TRAPPED IN SAND CAVEIN AND IS SUFFOCATED

Austin, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—While playing in the city camp here today John Ulich, 8, was trapped in a sand cavein and suffocated, and his twin brother Raymond and Harold Jensen, a playmate, were injured.

The latter two boys were rescued by Jack Steffanson, a truck driver, who saw the accident. Frantic efforts were made to rescue John, but the body was lifeless when workmen finally succeeded in removing the huge pile of sand.

FLAMES TRAP 13 NATIVES AND BURN THEM TO DEATH

Cape Town, South Africa, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Flames swept an area approximately five miles square today at Illavo, near Durban, trapping 13 natives who were burned to death. Several planters were ruined by the destruction of 2,000 acres of sugar cane.

ST. CLOUD ELKS STATE CONVENTION TO COVER PERIOD AUGUST 11-13

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN FOR 18 COMPETITIVE EVENTS SCHEDULED

LED BY BAND AND DRUM CORPS 24 LODGES TO BE REPRESENTED

Led by bands and drum corps, delegates and members from the 24 Elk lodges in Minnesota will assemble at St. Cloud August 11, 12 and 13 for their twenty-second annual state convention.

Besides business meetings at which new officers are to be elected, F. X. Beaver, secretary of St. Cloud No. 516 and secretary of the convention committee, has announced that there will be a parade, a ritualistic contest, sight-seeing trips, banquets, dancing and more than 18 competitive events for which St. Cloud lodge has offered prizes of from $15 to $250 each.

Ball Team to Get Prize

Prizes will be awarded to the winning ball team, to the largest delegation in the parade, to the best parade appearance and for the three best floats, drill teams, drum corps, clown bands and bands.

The Minneapolis Elks No. 44 band led by William Warvelle Nelson, and the St. Paul Drum and Bugle Corps, with Gerald Cannon as drum-major, will be at the convention. Both won first place in their class at the Grand Lodge reunion in Chicago.

Brainerd will be represented by its Ladies' band. Other lodges which will have bands include: Owatonna, Red Wing, Mankato and Stillwater. In addition, practically every lodge in the state will send a marching club, drill team or drum corps, as reported by Secretary Beaver.

New Officers to Be Elected

The ritualistic committee of the association has chosen Austin to represent the southern Minnesota jurisdiction and Brainerd northern Minnesota. The two teams will meet in the lodge room at 8 P. M. on the first day of the convention to vie for state championship honors and the silver cup.

John E. Regan, who has been president of Minnesota Elks for the last three years, and James R. Jerrard, treasurer, will resign, so that new officers must be elected at the business session, Aug. 11.

Delegates to Tour District

Included among the speakers will be William C. Robertson, of the Grand Lodge committee on social and community welfare, John C. Price of Columbus, past grand exalted ruler of the order; Fred C. Robinson, grand secretary; Judge Mathias Baldwin, district deputy for Minnesota North and Leonard C. Seamer, district deputy for Minnesota South.

The third day, which is not a convention day proper, will be given over to sightseeing. Among the places to be visited are the St. Cloud granite quarries and cutting plants; the United States veterans' hospital, erected at a cost of a million and a half dollars; the Minnesota state reformatory; the state teachers' college; the Bar pickling plant and the Watab paper mill, where 80 tons of book paper are turned out daily. Special programs of entertainment are being arranged for the wives of the delegates.

Founded Oberlin College

Oberlin college was founded in 1833 by John J. Shipherd, then a missionary preacher in the little village of Elyria. He was but thirty years of age, and having recently read the life of the deceased Oberlin, he named the college after him. Eight years after Shipherd founded Oberlin, he went into the wilds of Michigan and founded the town and college of Olivet. He died at the age of forty-three.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Efficient Helper

A large company was to be photographed in a group, including the photographer, who sought the aid of a youth to press the bulb. Everything was ready at last and the operation was completed. When the group was dispersed it occurred to the photographer to ask the boy whether he had pressed the bulb exactly as instructed. "Oh, yes," said the boy, "I practiced it half a dozen times before I took the group!"—Nebelspalter, Zurich.

COURSE OF TRUE LOVE A BUMPY ONE

Carnival People in Town Excited Over Love Match of Two of Their Number

MARRIAGE STOPPED BY KIN

Brother of Prospective Bridgegroom Says Latter is Only 19 Years Old

The course of love doesn't run smooth even in carnivals sometimes and that is why the concession boys, stake men, acrobats, ticket men and girls, have something more to talk about today than what took place last night at the Blue Ribbon Shows or what will take place tonight.

It happened that two of the members of the carnival, one a boy and the other a lady a few years his superior declared their love for each other and decided on marriage. It was then they found that the road of love has its uphills, turns, twists and oppositions.

The boy is Ray St. Arnauld, 19 years old, who runs the cat rack concession stand who fell desperately in love with the eyes of the hulu hulu dancer, Sally Oderman, as he shouted his attractions to the people and she as she "strutted her stuff" in the Hawaiian act, returned her love to him.

The other day after working hours the two confessed their love for each other and decided on the remedy—marriage.

The couple applied for a license at the office of the court of the district clerk and were refused because the two were not residents of Crow Wing county but of Ramsey county, their homes being in St. Paul.

Evn if they had been granted a license, it is doubtful whether the marriage would take place because Ray St. Arnauld's older brother Hank who claims to be his guardian also, was prepared to put up such strong opposition to the marriage that it undoubtedly would not have been held.

Even as it is, Hank St. Arnauld claims credit in stopping the proposed marriage.

"Ray is only 19 years old you know," said Hank St. Arnauld today, "and the girl he was going to marry is at least 30 years old, a widow with a child of four years. I don't think their marriage would be a success so I have filled in blanks and put a stop to it. If they want to they can get married in St. Paul but I think by that time the two will have more sense."

The love affair must have been a speedy one for the boys at the carnival today said the two had known each other only ten days.

Ray S. Arnauld has been with the carnival for two years while Sally Oderman has been with the carnival only ten days.

But then there are other cases where love runs smoother in carnivals. Take for instance, the marriage that took place i nthe Blue Ribbon Shows camp at Aitkin last week of Joe Lalley, Mitchell, S. D., and Dorothy Carroll, of St. Paul. The young couple had known each other for three months. Joe Lalley sells tickets for the merry go round and Dorothy Carroll runs the shooting gallery.

"Joe's a good scout," the boys at the circus said today, "when he got married he passed around a couple boxes of cigars to the gang."

MADE MANAGER OF 13 STORES

Ed. Hedstrom, Local Man, Has Been Appointed Manager of Red Owl Stores for District

WAS LOCAL MANAGER HERE

Sixth District Includes Stores in 11 Localities in the Northwest

The Red Owl Stores Incorporated announce the appointment this week of Ed. Hedstrom of Brainerd as the new district manager for the territory comprising Evelcth, Virginia, Chisholm, North Hibbing, South Hibbing, International Falls, Bemidji, Brainerd, Little Falls, Staples, Wadena, which includes 11 stores and two meat markets. To fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Hedstrom, Mrs. Hedstrom has been made the local manager with Arthur Lampman as assistant manager.

Two new districts have been recently created by the Owl stores, both Mr. and Mrs. Hedstrom winning their new positions with the company by their record of long service as successful store managers.

The local branch is one of a group of 80 stores that are operated throughout Wisconsin, Iowa, South and North Dakota and Minnesota and was opened in the city about four years ago with M. L. Prieve as manager. After Mr. Prieve's resignation a year later Mr. Hedstrom was put in charge and under his management the business has been built up to the rank of one of Brainerd's foremost and leading grocery stores. A meat department is also kept in the local store and two other such departments will be under the jurisdiction of Mr. Hedstrom in his new territory.

W. H. Triplett

Little Visits

Around the Rural Section

Written especially for the Dispatch by W. H. Triplett, travelling editor for this paper and The Farmer of St. Paul.

I was much impressed today while walking through a field of oats by the abundant smut present, and wish to call the attention of the farmers to the fact that the loss due to smut can be prevented or at least reduced to a small percentage; the loss caused by smut in this county alone this year will amount to enough to buy the best improved 160-acre farm in Minnesota, figuring the cost of $300 per acre. The treatment and prevention of smut is simple. For information, consult your county agent or write to the University Farm, St. Paul.

After revisiting several farmers I missed seeing yesterday, I called on C. F. Maust who formerly lived in Fillmore county and has farmed 240 acres in Crow Wing county for the last 23 years. At present 12 cows of mixed breed are milked, which will be assured of good alfalfa hay in their ration next winter. Mr. Maust is a great believer in alfalfa as he has 17 acres in all. This is the largest acreage that I know of on any route.

J. E. Wolhart was busy cutting hay and was some distance from the house, consequently I did not see him as I would like to have. Mrs. Wolhart says they have lived in the community the last 12 years, making dairying their major enterprise; 15 cows of mixed breed are milked but Mr. Wolhart is working toward a Holstein herd. I found Mrs. Wolhart doing the weekly washing, and must give them credit for she had a power washer doing the work.

S. A. Clark is one of our oldest printers in the community, having worked at the printers trade for 42 years. Mr. and Mrs. Clark became tired of inside work and bought 80 acres four years ago, and now have 10 cows to occupy their time besides the other farm work; five acres of clover and two of alfalfa make up the major hay crop. We wish to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Clark on their undertaking in improving the farm as they have.

Andrew Olson can consider himself lucky to have as good a renter as Henry Rau for when one is as interested in developing a herd of cows as Mr. Rau the land owners should co-operate with their renters as such renters are an asset to the county. Mr. Rau is milking 14 cows of the Holstein breed and has had a pure breed sire at the head of the herd for the past five years. Mrs. Rau remarked that they sure could see a lot difference since they started using a silo; it not only has saved them lots of feed but has increased the milk production very much. Fourteen fall pigs from three sows are now ready for the market.

Ed. Ledoux has lived in the community for the past seven years; he formerly lived in the Dakotas where he farmed for 10 years. Mr. Ledoux bought 80 acres this spring and has 11 cows that will help to increase the crop yield as well bring in some ready cash each month. He has 35 pigs from five sows that will help him to pick corn this fall.

E. T. Cedarleaf who sells insurance and bonds conceived the idea of starting a summer resort, so four years ago bought 23 acres from J. W. Fitzpatrick and divided it up into lots and sold same, and called the place after his own name, Cedarleaf Point. There are about 16 cottages and an ideal place to spend one's vacation, whether it be for a day or month. Any one who is in the market for a lot can buy one from Mr. Cedarleaf at a reasonable price. Mrs. Cedarleaf has a large flock of poultry about the place that will make some fine eating this winter.

The writer ran across the following poem that surely is worth while reading by all of our readers. It hits the nail on the head pretty good and shows one the many advantages of being a farmer's son.

The man who drove the Packard was
A banker's only son
He'd wasted time for twenty years
Believing that was fun,
He'd finished High School by request,
He flunked a course of law—
But socially he made a hit—
Because of cash—and Pa.
A course in agriculture
Was this "student's" last resort
He'd failed at everything in sight—
The farm must be his forte.
With aid of many tutors
And afraid of father's ire
Percy got a big diploma,
Though he just skinned by the wire.
The banker bought a splendid farm
To give his son a job
And prove that common hayseeds were
A dumb and lazy mob.
Percy started things with lots of pep
But finished things by halves.
He bought some record breaking cows
But didn't feed the calves.
He bought the finest, cleanest seed,
And planted it in June
He would have made some dandy hay
But shucks, it rained too soon.
His pigs would take a county prize
Except, they didn't grow.
His plowing wasn't done in time
The tractor wouldn't go.
So Percy failed at farming
His father paid the bill.
And Percy drives a Packard car
Plays golf, and dances, still.
Some people call him lazy,
An educated shirk
But I believe the trouble is,
He never learned to work.
A race horse ain't a jackass
That has been away to school
A man may have fifteen degrees
And still remain a fool.
But training helps, and here's one thing
For mental cogitation,
What kind of sap would Percy be
Without an education.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

Aug. 6, 1901

Robert Stitt of Duluth, long a resident of this city is here visiting old friends.

The elegant new residence which has been erected for Albert Angel is about ready for occupancy and Mr. and Mrs. Angel will move in in a few days.

Rev. C. Kite, formerly rector of St. Paul's church in this city now of Texas is greeting old friends in the city.

A change has been made in one of the largest firms in the city although the inventory of the stock has not been completed and the final transfer made. P. J. Walters, the junior member of the firm of Fisher and Walters, has sold his interest in the coal, wood, lime, cement and brick business in this city to L. S. Budd of Netchang, N. J. * * *

The county commissioners met in regular session today at the court house and in the absence of Chairman Gardner, Commissioner Paine was in the chair. There were present Commissioners Erickson, Maghan, and Kienow. * * * One of the important items of busines transacted this afternoon was the decision of the board to advertise for bids for the installing of a steam heating plant in the court house building. This will be a decided improvement and will be heralded with much joy by the county officials.

The new Swedish Baptist church on the corner of 10th and Oak streets South is nearly completed and it will be one of the most attractive places of worship in the city after the finishing touches are put on. * * *

COURSE OF TRUE LOVE A BUMPY ONE

Carnival People in Town Excited Over Love Match of Two of Their Number

MARRIAGE STOPPED BY KIN

Brother of Prospective Bridgegroom Says Latter is Only 19 Years Old

The course of love doesn't run smooth even in carnivals sometimes and that is why the concession boys, stake men, acrobats, ticket men and girls, have something more to talk about today than what took place last night at the Blue Ribbon Shows or what will take place tonight.

It happened that two of the members of the carnival, one a boy and the other a lady a few years his superior declared their love for each other and decided on marriage. It was then they found that the road of love has its uphills, turns, twists and oppositions.

The boy is Ray St. Arnauld, 19 years old, who runs the cat rack concession stand who fell desperately in love with the eyes of the hulu hulu dancer, Sally Oderman, as he shouted his attractions to the people and she as she "strutted her stuff" in the Hawaiian act, returned her love to him.

The other day after working hours the two confessed their love for each other and decided on the remedy—marriage.

The couple applied for a license at the office of the court of the district clerk and were refused because the two were not residents of Crow Wing county but of Ramsey county, their homes being in St. Paul.

Evn if they had been granted a license, it is doubtful whether the marriage would take place because Ray St. Arnauld's older brother Hank who claims to be his guardian also, was prepared to put up such strong opposition to the marriage that it undoubtedly would not have been held.

Even as it is, Hank St. Arnauld claims credit in stopping the proposed marriage.

"Ray is only 19 years old you know," said Hank St. Arnauld today, "and the girl he was going to marry is at least 30 years old, a widow with a child of four years. I don't think their marriage would be a success so I have filled in blanks and put a stop to it. If they want to they can get married in St. Paul but I think by that time the two will have more sense."

The love affair must have been a speedy one for the boys at the carnival today said the two had known each other only ten days.

Ray S. Arnauld has been with the carnival for two years while Sally Oderman has been with the carnival only ten days.

But then there are other cases where love runs smoother in carnivals. Take for instance, the marriage that took place i nthe Blue Ribbon Shows camp at Aitkin last week of Joe Lalley, Mitchell, S. D., and Dorothy Carroll, of St. Paul. The young couple had known each other for three months. Joe Lalley sells tickets for the merry go round and Dorothy Carroll runs the shooting gallery.

"Joe's a good scout," the boys at the circus said today, "when he got married he passed around a couple boxes of cigars to the gang."

MADE MANAGER OF 13 STORES

Ed. Hedstrom, Local Man, Has Been Appointed Manager of Red Owl Stores for District

WAS LOCAL MANAGER HERE

Sixth District Includes Stores in 11 Localities in the Northwest

The Red Owl Stores Incorporated announce the appointment this week of Ed. Hedstrom of Brainerd as the new district manager for the territory comprising Eveleth, Virginia, Chisholm, North Hibbing, South Hibbing, International Falls, Bemidji, Brainerd, Little Falls, Staples, Wadena, which includes 11 stores and two meat markets. To fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Hedstrom, Mrs. Hedstrom has been made the local manager with Arthur Lampman as assistant manager.

Two new districts have been recently created by the Owl stores, both Mr. and Mrs. Hedstrom winning their new positions with the company by their record of long service as successful store managers.

The local branch is one of a group of 80 stores that are operated throughout Wisconsin, Iowa, South and North Dakota and Minnesota and was opened in the city about four years ago with M. L. Prieve as manager. After Mr. Prieve's resignation a year later Mr. Hedstrom was put in charge and under his management the business has been built up to the rank of one of Brainerd's foremost and leading grocery stores. A meat department is also kept in the local store and two other such departments will be under the jurisdiction of Mr. Hedstrom in his new territory.

W. H. Triplett

Little Visits

Around the Rural Section

Written especially for the Dispatch by W. H. Triplett, travelling editor for this paper and The Farmer of St. Paul.

I was much impressed today while walking through a field of oats by the abundant smut present, and wish to call the attention of the farmers to the fact that the loss due to smut can be prevented or at least reduced to a small percentage; the loss caused by smut in this county alone this year will amount to enough to buy the best improved 160-acre farm in Minnesota, figuring the cost of $300 per acre. The treatment and prevention of smut is simple. For information, consult your county agent or write to the University Farm, St. Paul.

After revisiting several farmers I missed seeing yesterday, I called on C. F. Maust who formerly lived in Fillmore county and has farmed 240 acres in Crow Wing county for the last 23 years. At present 12 cows of mixed breed are milked, which will be assured of good alfalfa hay in their ration next winter. Mr. Maust is a great believer in alfalfa as he has 17 acres in all. This is the largest acreage that I know of on any route.

J. E. Wolhart was busy cutting hay and was some distance from the house, consequently I did not see him as I would like to have. Mrs. Wolhart says they have lived in the community the last 12 years, making dairying their major enterprise; 15 cows of mixed breed are milked but Mr. Wolhart is working toward a Holstein herd. I found Mrs. Wolhart doing the weekly washing, and must give them credit for she had a power washer doing the work.

S. A. Clark is one of our oldest printers in the community, having worked at the printers trade for 42 years. Mr. and Mrs. Clark became tired of inside work and bought 80 acres four years ago, and now have 10 cows to occupy their time besides the other farm work; five acres of clover and two of alfalfa make up the major hay crop. We wish to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Clark on their undertaking in improving the farm as they have.

Andrew Olson can consider himself lucky to have as good a renter as Henry Rau for when one is as interested in developing a herd of cows as Mr. Rau the land owners should co-operate with their renters as such renters are an asset to the county. Mr. Rau is milking 14 cows of the Holstein breed and has had a pure breed sire at the head of the herd for the past five years. Mrs. Rau remarked that they sure could see a lot difference since they started using a silo; it not only has saved them lots of feed but has increased the milk production very much. Fourteen fall pigs from three sows are now ready for the market.

Ed. Ledoux has lived in the community for the past seven years; he formerly lived in the Dakotas where he farmed for 10 years. Mr. Ledoux bought 80 acres this spring and has 11 cows that will help to increase the crop yield as well bring in some ready cash each month. He has 35 pigs from five sows that will help him to pick corn this fall.

E. T. Cedarleaf who sells insurance and bonds conceived the idea of starting a summer resort, so four years ago bought 23 acres from J. W. Fitzpatrick and divided it up into lots and sold same, and called the place after his own name, Cedarleaf Point. There are about 16 cottages and an ideal place to spend one's vacation, whether it be for a day or month. Any one who is in the market for a lot can buy one from Mr. Cedarleaf at a reasonable price. Mrs. Cedarleaf has a large flock of poultry about the place that will make some fine eating this winter.

The writer ran across the following poem that surely is worth while reading by all of our readers. It hits the nail on the head pretty good and shows one the many advantages of being a farmer's son.

The man who drove the Packard was
A banker's only son
He'd wasted time for twenty years
Believing that was fun,
He'd finished High School by request,
He flunked a course of law—
But socially he made a hit—
Because of cash—and Pa.
A course in agriculture
Was this "student's" last resort
He'd failed at everything in sight—
The farm must be his forte.
With aid of many tutors
And afraid of father's ire
Percy got a big diploma,
Though he just skinned by the wire.
The banker bought a splendid farm
To give his son a job
And prove that common hayseeds were
A dumb and lazy mob.
Percy started things with lots of pep
But finished things by halves.
He bought some record breaking cows
But didn't feed the calves.
He bought the finest, cleanest seed,
And planted it in June
He would have made some dandy hay
But shucks, it rained too soon.
His pigs would take a county prize
Except, they didn't grow.
His plowing wasn't done in time
The tractor wouldn't go.
So Percy failed at farming
His father paid the bill.
And Percy drives a Packard car
Plays golf, and dances, still.
Some people call him lazy,
An educated shirk
But I believe the trouble is,
He never learned to work.
A race horse ain't a jackass
That has been away to school
A man may have fifteen degrees
And still remain a fool.
But training helps, and here's one thing
For mental cogitation,
What kind of sap would Percy be
Without an education.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

Aug. 6, 1901

Robert Stitt of Duluth, long a resident of this city is here visiting old friends.

The elegant new residence which has been erected for Albert Angel is about ready for occupancy and Mr. and Mrs. Angel will move in in a few days.

Rev. C. Kite, formerly rector of St. Paul's church in this city now of Texas is greeting old friends in the city.

A change has been made in one of the largest firms in the city although the inventory of the stock has not been completed and the final transfer made. P. J. Walters, the junior member of the firm of Fisher and Walters, has sold his interest in the coal, wood, lime, cement and brick business in this city to L. S. Budd of Netchang, N. J. * * *

The county commissioners met in regular session today at the court house and in the absence of Chairman Gardner, Commissioner Paine was in the chair. There were present Commissioners Erickson, Maghan, and Kienow. * * * One of the important items of busines transacted this afternoon was the decision of the board to advertise for bids for the installing of a steam heating plant in the court house building. This will be a decided improvement and will be heralded with much joy by the county officials.

The new Swedish Baptist church on the corner of 10th and Oak streets South is nearly completed and it will be one of the most attractive places of worship in the city after the finishing touches are put on. * * *

One of the swellest social events chronicled in the city for some time occurred on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph Sipp when she, Mrs. Milton McFadden, Mrs. Joseph Howe, Mrs. Chas. Thompson, and Mrs. Hollenbeck gave a coffee.

The hours were from 3 to 6 o'clock and about 175 ladies called. At the refreshment table the ladies were assisted by the Misses Lucy Stearns, Mary Hollenbeck, Jeanette Long, Ella McFadden, and Mrs. Fred Slipp.

The rooms were tastily decorated with nasturtiums, geraniums, and palms and it was a delightfully pleasant and beautiful scene. The charming hostesses proved themselves abundantly able to undertake such an elaborate function.

Keene and McFadden have just sold to W. A. Spencer the old Phelp's property, house and two lots, on the corner of Seventh and Kingwood streets North. Mr. Spencer paid $1050 cash for the property and it is understood that he will greatly improve the corner and make it one of the most attractive in the city.

HISTORICAL MARKERS

EVER since we visited Boston and saw that city and its environs, all reminiscent of Revolutionary war and early American pioneer history and saw how the various tablets and monuments and markers designated historical spots, we have been a firm believer in such practice of permanently marking the history of the past and present.

In season and out of season we have preached using markers to designate the sites of historical events so that our lake region may be made more interesting for the tourists and other visitors. We have suggested the luncheon clubs, Rotarians and Lions, the Boy Scouts, Daughters of the American Revolution, Chamber of Commerce or other organizations get inexpensive markers to mark sites. They can be cast by our own foundry, material and making both being inexpensive.

Ralph I. Budd, president of the Great Northern railway company, just lately has also made the suggestion that the attractions of Minnesota for tourists could be still further augmented through the placing of such markers along the highways upon or near places of historical importance, the markers to bear informal inscriptions.

Minnesota, as mentioned by the Minneapolis Tribune, has many such places. In its history are tragedy, romance, and the vision and courage of the pioneer. Many of the more important places are already sufficiently indicated, thanks to the legislature and to the efforts of patriotic and historical organizations, but there are many others that might well be thus designated. In some instances the highway markers would be nothing more than directory signs to this or that historic ground, somewhat removed, perhaps from the highway.

Mr. Budd referred to the fact that people of the east who travel in or motor through Minnesota are interested in the state's historical background and find their journeyings more interesting when they are able to visualize some of the formative events of the past. The same thing may be said with truth of the people of Minnesota, too, many of whom have a limited knowledge of what went on in this part of the country in the days of the explorers, and in the trail-blazing times of the later pioneers.

There are many evidences of a growing popular interest in American history and in the lives and personalities of the great men and women who left their imprint on the country. It is a study that is well to be encouraged in all reasonable ways. There is more in the dowry of Minnesota than woods, lakes, mines, quarries, streams, waterfalls and fruitful fields. It is enriched with the fortitude, sacrifice and constructive service of those, the stories of whose lives and deeds give most to history its vitality and tang.

Informative markers along the highways would do much to re-people and reconstruct in the minds of the living the Minnesota of the Wilderness and frontier days. We cannot know too much of the course along which a community like the state of Minnesota evolved from a primitive land into a well developed state, proud of its traditions and culture.

OUR CITY'S GREETING CARDS

MAYOR FRANK E. LITTLE, when giving his inaugural address at a council meeting, expressed himself in favor of stimulating tourist business and of showing the tourists every possible courtesy and extending them a greeting so as to make them aware of the fact that we appreciated their coming to Brainerd and the lake country.

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH wrote Mayor Lawrence C. Hodgson (Larry Ho) of St. Paul, to see what kind of a card his city gave its visiting tourists. Mayor Hodgson, who is a literary genius of the highest order, whose poems and addresses are known to many Brainerd people, indited a special greeting to be used by Brainerd, as follows:

"Dear Friend: As Mayor of Brainerd I welcome you to a friendly and neighborly city. We are glad to have you with us and trust that while you are in Brainerd your every experience may be satisfying and that our hospitality may appeal to you as genuine and human.

"Call on us for any service you may desire."

The query addressed to Mayor George E. Leach, of Minneapolis, was referred to the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association, who answered by enclosing one of their cards.

They have a green colored card headed "Minneapolis Welcomes You!" The script following reads: "The City of Minneapolis invites you to visit the Tourist Information Bureau of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association, Gateway Building, Washington, Nicollet and Hennepin Aves., where you will be presented with a Visitor's Emblem for your car, conveying the official hospitality of the City, together with information and maps which will be valuable to you during your visit to our City and State. George E. Leach, Mayor."

Each card is numbered and under the number states: "Minnesota Law requires visiting motorists to apply for Visitor's Registration Card, if htey intend to remain in the State for more than ten days. Ask at the Gateway Building."

On the reverse side of the card is a map measuring 2½ by 3½ inches designating main highways leading into the city and marking the site of the Tourist Information Bureau.

Mayor Little's suggestion is a good one and should be utilized. The Lions club has been active in greeting tourists and the greeting cards may be given them to be distributed with their literature and the maps given all visitors.

A RECENT picnic held at Shore Acres in the Mille Lacs country was full of harmony. Three bands, Milaca, Oak Park and Onamia, picnicked together.

BANK mergers appear to be the fashion throughout the country. Also newspaper mergers, as well as attempted rail consolidations.

AUTO GOES IN DITCH; 1 KILLED

Rhinelander, Wis., Aug. 6.—(UP)—When their automobile went into a ditch and turned turtle on a county trunk road near here, Walter Simonsky, 35, was killed and John Skworon was badly injured. Simonski, prominent Sugar Camp farmer, and Skworon were returning home from a fishing trip when the accident occurred. It is believed their automobile went into the ditch after skidding on a loose sand road. The dead man is survived by his wife and three children.

LITTLE, when giving his inaugural address at a council meeting, expressed himself in favor of stimulating tourist business and of showing the tourists every possible courtesy and extending them a greeting so as to make them aware of the fact that we appreciated their coming to Brainerd and the lake country.

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH wrote Mayor Lawrence C. Hodgson (Larry Ho) of St. Paul, to see what kind of a card his city gave its visiting tourists. Mayor Hodgson, who is a literary genius of the highest order, whose poems and addresses are known to many Brainerd people, indited a special greeting to be used by Brainerd, as follows:

"Dear Friend: As Mayor of Brainerd I welcome you to a friendly and neighborly city. We are glad to have you with us and trust that while you are in Brainerd your every experience may be satisfying and that our hospitality may appeal to you as genuine and human.

"Call on us for any service you may desire."

The query addressed to Mayor George E. Leach, of Minneapolis, was referred to the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association, who answered by enclosing one of their cards.

They have a green colored card headed "Minneapolis Welcomes You!" The script following reads: "The City of Minneapolis invites you to visit the Tourist Information Bureau of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association, Gateway Building, Washington, Nicollet and Hennepin Aves., where you will be presented with a Visitor's Emblem for your car, conveying the official hospitality of the City, together with information and maps which will be valuable to you during your visit to our City and State. George E. Leach, Mayor."

Each card is numbered and under the number states: "Minnesota Law requires visiting motorists to apply for Visitor's Registration Card, if htey intend to remain in the State for more than ten days. Ask at the Gateway Building."

On the reverse side of the card is a map measuring 2½ by 3½ inches designating main highways leading into the city and marking the site of the Tourist Information Bureau.

Mayor Little's suggestion is a good one and should be utilized. The Lions club has been active in greeting tourists and the greeting cards may be given them to be distributed with their literature and the maps given all visitors.

A RECENT picnic held at Shore Acres in the Mille Lacs country was full of harmony. Three bands, Milaca, Oak Park and Onamia, picnicked together.

BANK mergers appear to be the fashion throughout the country. Also newspaper mergers, as well as attempted rail consolidations.

AUTO GOES IN DITCH; 1 KILLED

Rhinelander, Wis., Aug. 6.—(UP)—When their automobile went into a ditch and turned turtle on a county trunk road near here, Walter Simonsky, 35, was killed and John Skworon was badly injured. Simonski, prominent Sugar Camp farmer, and Skworon were returning home from a fishing trip when the accident occurred. It is believed their automobile went into the ditch after skidding on a loose sand road. The dead man is survived by his wife and three children.

BANKER CONFESSES EMBEZZLING FUNDS

C. E. SOUTHWICK, OF ROCHESTER BANK, ADMITS TAKING $26,998.44

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 6—(UP)—C. E. Southwick, assistant cashier of the Union National Bank, today was being held in the Olmstead county jail following his confession last night of embezzling $26,998.44 of the bank's funds.

Shortage of $1,000 was discovered in Southwick's accounts while he was away on a vacation. When confronted with this evidence, he confessed to taking money from the bank over a 10-year period.

Southwick had cleverly manipulated his books, using the accounts of seventeen bank patrons. He had shown no unusual signs of prosperity and officials' suspicions were not aroused.

He said he did not have a cent of the money taken, but had spent it all.

TWO N. W. ROADS WILL NOT FOLLOW U. P. EXAMPLE

St. Paul, Aug. 6—(UP)—Two northwest railroads at least will not emulate the example of the Union Pacific railroad whose general manager, M. J. Jeffers, announced from Omaha Thursday that no more women would be hired by that railroad, it was learned from prominent rail officials here today.

Commenting on the Union Pacific statement, that "women are not adaptable to promotion as officials" Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific, said his company will not make any change in regard to its policy of employing women.

"Women are as well suited as men to fill certain positions and they will be continued in that line of employment," he said.

Although no official statement was available from the Great Northern it was learned that while certain restrictions have been established concerning the employment of women no sweeping change in policy ever has been contemplated.

FISHERMAN'S BODY FOUND IN LAKE

Winona, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—The body of Frank Huettel, 33, of Areadia, Wis., who went fishing Thursday afternoon, was found in the lake near Arcadia today.

Huettel was subject to epileptic fits and it is believed he fell in the water when seized by a sudden attack.

DRAG LAKE AND SEARCH FOR LOST REAL ESTATE MAN

Fergus Falls, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Authorities today were dragging Lake Marion in search of the body of Fred Heyn, prominent real estate dealer of Omaha, who disappeared from a fishing boat yesterday.

Heyn, who is said to have approximately $300,000 in real estate ventures in Omaha came here recently with his mother.

Yesterday afternoon Heyn's boat containing fishing tackle and oars was found floating in the middle of the lake.

It is feared Heyn was suffering from a nervous breakdown and may have committed suicide.

If local men fail in their attempt to locate the body "Fisherman John" Jeremy, of Stillwater, will be asked to come here to aid in the search. Jeremy is noted for his ability to rescue bodies of drowned persons from lakes, having succeeded in many instances where all efforts by local talent had failed.

Humanity's Increase

It is estimated that there are over 40,000,000 births every year. Supposing that the children could be carried past a given point at the rate of twelve a minute, the one who was last would be seven years of age before he passed the counters.

NEW BRIDGE IS OPENED IN ST. PAUL

ROBERT STREET BRIDGE CONNECTS WEST SIDE WITH BUSINESS SECTION

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 6.—(UP)—The new Robert street bridge connecting the west side with the business section of St. Paul, will be formally opened for use this afternoon.

Mayor Hodgson will break a silver cord across the big span, officially opening the structure for all traffic.

The bridge has been entirely completed, all debris and rubbish having been carted away, and streets leading to the busy thoroughfare are gaily decorated with flags and bunting.

A huge parade is to form at 3:30 P. M. on Wabasha street and begin marching at 4 P. M. The processional will be led by motorcycle policemen. Five bands will be in line.

"ASK THE WIFE", IS WHAT DEMPSEY SAYS

NO DOMESTIC DISCORD IN THE CHAMPION'S HOME

HE HAS TROUBLES WITH LAWYERS, PROCESS SERVERS, ETC.

BUT NO RIFT IN THE SUNSHINE OF HIS OWN HOME

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 6—Jack Dempsey may have been havng his troubles with lawyers, process servers, boxing commissions, former managers and what not, but there is no domestic discord around the establishment of the world's heavyweight champion.

"Ask the wife," the champion replied, when he was asked about the story printed recently that Miss Estelle Taylor, his wife and a prominent move actress, was going to divorce him.

Miss Taylor, sitting beside her husband, flared up and sputtered before she answered: "I saw that story and I have never been so irritated in my life," she said. "We're happy now and we have been happy, haven't we, Jack?" she continued.

The champion gave a laugh: "I'll say so," and embraced his wife.

"This is not movie stuff either," he said.

Mrs. Dempsey said she had married the champion because she loved him and that his reputation as a boxer, his financial standing as the wealthiest of all champions, and the publicity that she might get from their alliance had not been considered.

"I guess we got married just because we loved each other and we're no different from our mothers and fathers. I know of no reason that we should not be treated as normal people and not be forced to deny all the rumors that we hear," she said.

"There's one particularly good trait that Jack has and it helps him a lot. He never worries about stories that are printed about him. But I do. He does not read all the papers regularly but I do and I save the clippings."

Mrs. Dempsey said that Jack was just an ordinary fine fellow around the home, that he was not a prima donna and did not have an artistic temperament.

"We do not have to regulate the menu for him. He likes the things to eat that I like and I eat most anything. When he is in serious training I suppose he can't eat everything that he wants but he keeps himself in such good condition that he does not have to worry about a diet.

"I can cook and have cooked for him, but he travels around so much and I am so busy with movie work that I can't be very domestic. And he does not want me to be a kitchen mechanic."

Mrs. Dempsey said Jack wanted her to remain with him all during his training for the fight against Gene Tunney which Tex Rickard hopes to stage in the Yankee stadium on September 16.

"I can remain for only a few weeks as I have to return to Hollywood and go back to work," she said.

Jack was asked his opinon of Valentino as a fighter and he replied: "Say, he's pretty good, let me tell you. I worked with him a couple of times and he's no bargain with the gloves."

Mrs. Dempsey said there was no manager or boss in the champion's home and that they did not need a manager. "The only time I have wanted to do any bossing was about the selection of his clothes. He would prefer to dress as sedately as an undertaker, but I like clothes with a little life in them—not race track suits, but something young like," she said.

"I never tell her anything about clothes," the champion cut in, "and she can't tell me anything about mine—but I usually get what she likes and then everybody's happy."

Mrs. Dempsey never has seen the champion fight and she will not be at the ringside when he meets Tunney.

"I haven't any objection to the game, of course," she said, "but I don't believe I could stand the strain."

HELEN WILLS TO DEFEND TITLE NEXT MONTH

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 6.—Prospects of several foreign entries, including some of the flashiest players in Europe, will furnish some badly needed interest in the women's national tennis championships at Forest Hills next month.

But even if Senorita Lilli d'Alvarez and Mlle. Katrinka Bouman are not able to make the trip and Mrs. Kathlene McKane Godfrey is the only foreign star in the field, the interest in the fortunes of Miss Helen Wills, the national champion, will be enough to restore some of the lost interest in women's tennis.

From a commercial standpoint there would be no great inducement to attract crowds to see the pretty young California girl walk away with another championship, but the operation she was forced to undergo in Paris enters an element of doubt into the tournament.

There are reasons to doubt now that Miss Wills will be able to defend her championship successfully even if she is not forced to play against any of the three European stars.

From all apearances she has recovered completely from the effects of the operation but it is not certain that some weakness might not develop after a week of hard championship competition.

Her mother is not certain that she will be able to play her best game and Miss Mary K. Browne, captain of the American team that invaded Europe, is frankly dubious about her chances.

Mrs. Wills told the writer when they returned from England that she would like to have had Helen examined by her father, a surgeon, before she started practicing at Forest Hills.

"I don't like to assume all the responsibility because I have nothing but her own assurance that she feels physically fit for the test," she said. "I suppose also that the only real test of her condition is to let her try herself out."

Miss Browne said she had advised Helen not to attempt any tournament competition this season.

"It is not worth the taking of any chances," Miss Browne said. "What is a cup or a record compared to health? It would be a shame to wreck the future of a brililant player like Helen just to keep intact a record for successive championships."

Helen's confidence that she is strong enough to play through two preliminary tournaments and to enter the national championships may be the result of the encouragement given her by Dr. Thierry de Martell, one of the world's most celebrated surgeons, who performed the opeation.

Dr. Martell, in his day a noted tennis player, oarsman and football player, told Mrs. Wills before the operation that the patient should be able to leave the hospital in five days and return to the courts within three weeks.

"I don't believe in coddling patients," he told the champion's mother. "Get them out of bed as soon as possible and they will recover all the quicker."

When Miss Wills wanted to get out of bed on the fourth day after the operation, the nurses were astounded and Mrs. Wills protested but the doctor said: "Let her up as soon as she wants to get up. It was a very minor operation."

With such encouragement and with the good fortune to be able to leave the hospital so soon, it was quite natural that a strong, healthy girl like the young champion would feel capable of playing at Wimbledon and at Forest Hills and in spite of protest from all her friends she would have entered the Wimbledon tournament if her father hadn't cabled orders against it.

While she has not committed herself officially, Miss Wills has intimated that she isn't particularly interested in another national cup or in keeping her record intact for continuous victories. She wants to win the national championship so she can be in a position to seek another match with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen next year without making it look like she is running around heckling the French star.

She figures if she returns to France next spring to pursue her studies she can gracefully go about a return match if she is the national champion. Otherwise she could be considered an outsider chasing the champion for a battle.

Miss Wills faces another match against Mlle. Lenglen with more confidence and with better equipment than she had last winter during the Riviera season. She ought to be better physically, she will have had more international experience, which is invaluable and she will have had the advantage of one opportunity to study first hand the game of the brilliant French girl.

GAME CALLED FOR DARKNESS AT BEGINNING OF SEVENTH INNING

Game tonight: Y.M.C.A. vs. N.E.

The Seals stepped out of the cellar position in the city league by defeating the B. A. C. nine, 7 to 4, in a fairly good game last night. The game was started late, and had to be called on account of darkness at the beginning of the seventh inning. At the time the game was called, the B. A. C., in their half of the last inning, had scored two runs, and had the tying run hovering on second with one man out.

The Seals got to Stallman for four hits and five runs in the first inning, being aided along by three walks, two errors and a wild pitch. Uddenberg replaced Stallman at the first half of the second inning.

Stevens returned to the mound for the Seals after an absence of several weeks, during which time he made a trip to the east. He was not up to his first half form, and allowed four runs in the five frames he toiled.

Carlson and Ware provided the fielding sensations. Carlson made a perfect peg to home from left field to catch Niemi at the plate, after Nutting had singled. Ware gave the fans a thrill with a sensational one-handed stop of Norman's grounder over second base, and got Norman at first. In all, Ware had five chances, which he handled perfectly.

"ASK THE WIFE", IS WHAT DEMPSEY SAYS

NO DOMESTIC DISCORD IN THE CHAMPION'S HOME

HE HAS TROUBLES WITH LAWYERS, PROCESS SERVERS, ETC.

BUT NO RIFT IN THE SUNSHINE OF HIS OWN HOME

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 6—Jack Dempsey may have been havng his troubles with lawyers, process servers, boxing commissions, former managers and what not, but there is no domestic discord around the establishment of the world's heavyweight champion.

"Ask the wife," the champion replied, when he was asked about the story printed recently that Miss Estelle Taylor, his wife and a prominent move actress, was going to divorce him.

Miss Taylor, sitting beside her husband, flared up and sputtered before she answered: "I saw that story and I have never been so irritated in my life," she said. "We're happy now and we have been happy, haven't we, Jack?" she continued.

The champion gave a laugh: "I'll say so," and embraced his wife.

"This is not movie stuff either," he said.

Mrs. Dempsey said she had married the champion because she loved him and that his reputation as a boxer, his financial standing as the wealthiest of all champions, and the publicity that she might get from their alliance had not been considered.

"I guess we got married just because we loved each other and we're no different from our mothers and fathers. I know of no reason that we should not be treated as normal people and not be forced to deny all the rumors that we hear," she said.

"There's one particularly good trait that Jack has and it helps him a lot. He never worries about stories that are printed about him. But I do. He does not read all the papers regularly but I do and I save the clippings."

Mrs. Dempsey said that Jack was just an ordinary fine fellow around the home, that he was not a prima donna and did not have an artistic temperament.

"We do not have to regulate the menu for him. He likes the things to eat that I like and I eat most anything. When he is in serious training I suppose he can't eat everything that he wants but he keeps himself in such good condition that he does not have to worry about a diet.

"I can cook and have cooked for him, but he travels around so much and I am so busy with movie work that I can't be very domestic. And he does not want me to be a kitchen mechanic."

Mrs. Dempsey said Jack wanted her to remain with him all during his training for the fight against Gene Tunney which Tex Rickard hopes to stage in the Yankee stadium on September 16.

"I can remain for only a few weeks as I have to return to Hollywood and go back to work," she said.

Jack was asked his opinon of Valentino as a fighter and he replied: "Say, he's pretty good, let me tell you. I worked with him a couple of times and he's no bargain with the gloves."

Mrs. Dempsey said there was no manager or boss in the champion's home and that they did not need a manager. "The only time I have wanted to do any bossing was about the selection of his clothes. He would prefer to dress as sedately as an undertaker, but I like clothes with a little life in them—not race track suits, but something young like," she said.

"I never tell her anything about clothes," the champion cut in, "and she can't tell me anything about mine—but I usually get what she likes and then everybody's happy."

Mrs. Dempsey never has seen the champion fight and she will not be at the ringside when he meets Tunney.

"I haven't any objection to the game, of course," she said, "but I don't believe I could stand the strain."

HELEN WILLS TO DEFEND TITLE NEXT MONTH

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 6.—Prospects of several foreign entries, including some of the flashiest players in Europe, will furnish some badly needed interest in the women's national tennis championships at Forest Hills next month.

But even if Senorita Lilli d'Alvarez and Mlle. Katrinka Bouman are not able to make the trip and Mrs. Kathlene McKane Godfrey is the only foreign star in the field, the interest in the fortunes of Miss Helen Wills, the national champion, will be enough to restore some of the lost interest in women's tennis.

From a commercial standpoint there would be no great inducement to attract crowds to see the pretty young California girl walk away with another championship, but the operation she was forced to undergo in Paris enters an element of doubt into the tournament.

There are reasons to doubt now that Miss Wills will be able to defend her championship successfully even if she is not forced to play against any of the three European stars.

From all apearances she has recovered completely from the effects of the operation but it is not certain that some weakness might not develop after a week of hard championship competition.

Her mother is not certain that she will be able to play her best game and Miss Mary K. Browne, captain of the American team that invaded Europe, is frankly dubious about her chances.

Mrs. Wills told the writer when they returned from England that she would like to have had Helen examined by her father, a surgeon, before she started practicing at Forest Hills.

"I don't like to assume all the responsibility because I have nothing but her own assurance that she feels physically fit for the test," she said. "I suppose also that the only real test of her condition is to let her try herself out."

Miss Browne said she had advised Helen not to attempt any tournament competition this season.

"It is not worth the taking of any chances," Miss Browne said. "What is a cup or a record compared to health? It would be a shame to wreck the future of a brililant player like Helen just to keep intact a record for successive championships."

Helen's confidence that she is strong enough to play through two preliminary tournaments and to enter the national championships may be the result of the encouragement given her by Dr. Thierry de Martell, one of the world's most celebrated surgeons, who performed the opeation.

Dr. Martell, in his day a noted tennis player, oarsman and football player, told Mrs. Wills before the operation that the patient should be able to leave the hospital in five days and return to the courts within three weeks.

ELKS CORNER STONE LAYING IMPRESSIVE

Feeling of Pride Swells Hearts of All Elks and Other Citizens of Brainerd

DR. J. A. THABES PRESIDES

Mal Clark Praises Chairman H. P. Dunn and Other Members of Building Committee

The gavel which was used by the Exalted Ruler Dr. J. A. Thabes last evening was a gift made to Brainerd Lodge of Elks some years ago by J. Bachelder, charter member No. 7. It is made of the ivory from a walrus tusk and embellished with gold bands secured from gold found in creeks of the Nome, Alaska, district. Mr. Bachelder for years was identified with mining and banking at Nome.

One of the interesting observers of the ceremonies last night was J. P. Saunders, of Backus, who 26 years ago served the banquet at the institution of Brainerd lodge.

A feeling of pride swelled in the hearts of all the Elks and citizens of Brainerd, their heads bared, were happy, when the corner stone of the new Elks home now under construction at the corner of Sixth and Laurel streets was laid last evening with impressive ceremonies by the Brainerd Elks lodge.

The Elks have a just right to be proud and the citizens of Brainerd happy for is not the new Elks home when completed to be one of the biggest, the finest and the best buildings in the city? Elks not only here rejoiced at the construction of their new home where they will be able to hold their lodge ceremonies in beautiful large lodge rooms replacing their scant rooms, but Elks lodges of other communities were glad because they knew the Elks lodge was expanding greater than ever.

The ceremonies last evening though not elaborate were simple and impressive. Throngs gathered along the streets on Laurel and Sixth streets until it was necessary to police the streets. Little heed was given to an impending rain.

Greatness was exemplified in the ceremonies of the laying of the corner stone. It was also a dedication to the future generation for the contractors claim that the foundation which has been staunchly laid will stand up against time just as old Roman buildings did so.

Th Brainerd Ladies band were in attendance and played several pleasing selections. Dr. A. K. Cohen and Rowland Jenkins rendered a few selections. Mal Clark gave a short address.

Exalted Ruler Dr. J. A. Thabes conducted the ceremonies of the laying of the corner stone, giving the rituals.

Mal Clark spoke as follows: "This is a happy and eventful day for Brainerd Lodge of Elks. It marks the realization of what 26 years ago, was but a dream in the hearts of 64 residents of this same city, of whom only a handful remain to witness its maturity. It was a gala day in Brainerd, August 22 when after an all day celebration in which 300 Elks from the Twin Cities, St. Cloud, Fargo, and Duluth partook, and after a colorful and pretentious parade, headed by Dr. J. A. Thabes, as marshal of the day and with J. F. McGinnes, Al Mattes, Cliff Allbright, and Frank Hall as aides, the aides by the way being mounted on donkeys, and with Sam Adair as chairman of the parade committee, and after a banquet, the like of which was never before and has never since been seen, 64 fawns were courteously and thoroughly initiated into the sacred mysteries of Elkdom, to form the nucleus of what is now Brainerd Lodge No. 615, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Brother A. J. Halsted became its first exalted ruler and Brothers Thabes, Farrar and Nolan its board of trustees.

"The lodge has since enjoyed a steady and a healthy growth until today it numbers 500 of the choicest citizens of Brainerd, Crosby, Ironton, Deerwood, Aitkin, Staples, Pine River, and surrounding farms, and we will not stop until one thousand honorable active names are enrolled upon its pages.

"The Elks is a national organization of almost a million American citizens who, without regard to race, creed, politics, wealth or social position are united upon the four corner stones of Justice, Charity, Brotherly Love and Fidelity, for the relief of the needy, to succor the poor and to aid a brother in distress. Upon its altar of ceermony is draped the red, white and blue of the American flag, and there, is the Bible of God.

"The basic motto of the lodge is 'An Elk is never forgotten—never forsaken.' The first Sunday of each year finds its members gathered to do homage to their departed brothers. 'The faults of our Brothers, we write upon the sands, their virtues upon tablets of love and memory.' And on June 14 every year, we assemble to raise to new heights and to a finer degree of reverence and veneration, the American flag.

"And at this time, especial credit for the assured success of this vast undertaking must be given, not only in behalf of my brother Elks, but for the city of Brainerd, to the Elks building committee of which Brother Dunn is chairman. Without ostentation and unstintingly, they have worked and worked hard for almost a year studying plans and devising ways and means that this new Elks home might be a credit to the city and to the lodge. That their efforts have been successful and that they are indeed our benefactors is more than evident here today.

"People, I believe that I may truthfully assert that in no other organization in the world is the spirit of fraternalism so broad, so beneficial, so unheralded, so sweet, as it is in the Order of Elks. And fraternalism, the spirit of brotherhood, of fair play, of good will, of justice, of charity, is the greatest blessing that ever God did give to man. For truly, the spirit of Elkdom is best portrayed in that sage saying 'For when the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He writes not that you won or lost, but how you played the game."

ELKS CORNER STONE LAYING IMPRESSIVE

Feeling of Pride Swells Hearts of All Elks and Other Citizens of Brainerd

DR. J. A. THABES PRESIDES

Mal Clark Praises Chairman H. P. Dunn and Other Members of Building Committee

The gavel which was used by the Exalted Ruler Dr. J. A. Thabes last evening was a gift made to Brainerd Lodge of Elks some years ago by J. Bachelder, charter member No. 7. It is made of the ivory from a walrus tusk and embellished with gold bands secured from gold found in creeks of the Nome, Alaska, district. Mr. Bachelder for years was identified with mining and banking at Nome.

One of the interesting observers of the ceremonies last night was J. P. Saunders, of Backus, who 26 years ago served the banquet at the institution of Brainerd lodge.

A feeling of pride swelled in the hearts of all the Elks and citizens of Brainerd, their heads bared, were happy, when the corner stone of the new Elks home now under construction at the corner of Sixth and Laurel streets was laid last evening with impressive ceremonies by the Brainerd Elks lodge.

The Elks have a just right to be proud and the citizens of Brainerd happy for is not the new Elks home when completed to be one of the biggest, the finest and the best buildings in the city? Elks not only here rejoiced at the construction of their new home where they will be able to hold their lodge ceremonies in beautiful large lodge rooms replacing their scant rooms, but Elks lodges of other communities were glad because they knew the Elks lodge was expanding greater than ever.

The ceremonies last evening though not elaborate were simple and impressive. Throngs gathered along the streets on Laurel and Sixth streets until it was necessary to police the streets. Little heed was given to an impending rain.

Greatness was exemplified in the ceremonies of the laying of the corner stone. It was also a dedication to the future generation for the contractors claim that the foundation which has been staunchly laid will stand up against time just as old Roman buildings did so.

Th Brainerd Ladies band were in attendance and played several pleasing selections. Dr. A. K. Cohen and Rowland Jenkins rendered a few selections. Mal Clark gave a short address.

Exalted Ruler Dr. J. A. Thabes conducted the ceremonies of the laying of the corner stone, giving the rituals.

Mal Clark spoke as follows: "This is a happy and eventful day for Brainerd Lodge of Elks. It marks the realization of what 26 years ago, was but a dream in the hearts of 64 residents of this same city, of whom only a handful remain to witness its maturity. It was a gala day in Brainerd, August 22 when after an all day celebration in which 300 Elks from the Twin Cities, St. Cloud, Fargo, and Duluth partook, and after a colorful and pretentious parade, headed by Dr. J. A. Thabes, as marshal of the day and with J. F. McGinnes, Al Mattes, Cliff Allbright, and Frank Hall as aides, the aides by the way being mounted on donkeys, and with Sam Adair as chairman of the parade committee, and after a banquet, the like of which was never before and has never since been seen, 64 fawns were courteously and thoroughly initiated into the sacred mysteries of Elkdom, to form the nucleus of what is now Brainerd Lodge No. 615, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Brother A. J. Halsted became its first exalted ruler and Brothers Thabes, Farrar and Nolan its board of trustees.

"The lodge has since enjoyed a steady and a healthy growth until today it numbers 500 of the choicest citizens of Brainerd, Crosby, Ironton, Deerwood, Aitkin, Staples, Pine River, and surrounding farms, and we will not stop until one thousand honorable active names are enrolled upon its pages.

"The Elks is a national organization of almost a million American citizens who, without regard to race, creed, politics, wealth or social position are united upon the four corner stones of Justice, Charity, Brotherly Love and Fidelity, for the relief of the needy, to succor the poor and to aid a brother in distress. Upon its altar of ceermony is draped the red, white and blue of the American flag, and there is the Bible of God.

"The basic motto of the lodge is 'An Elk is never forgotten—never forsaken.' The first Sunday of each year finds its members gathered to do homage to their departed brothers. 'The faults of our Brothers, we write upon the sands, their virtues upon tablets of love and memory.' And on June 14 every year, we assemble to raise to new heights and to a finer degree of reverence and veneration, the American flag.

"And at this time, especial credit for the assured success of this vast undertaking must be given, not only in behalf of my brother Elks, but for the city of Brainerd, to the Elks building committee of which Brother Dunn is chairman. Without ostentation and unstintingly, they have worked and worked hard for almost a year studying plans and devising ways and means that this new Elks home might be a credit to the city and to the lodge. That their efforts have been successful and that they are indeed our benefactors is more than evident here today.

"People, I believe that I may truthfully assert that in no other organization in the world is the spirit of fraternalism so broad, so beneficial, so unheralded, so sweet, as it is in the Order of Elks. And fraternalism, the spirit of brotherhood, of fair play, of good will, of justice, of charity, is the greatest blessing that ever God did give to man. For truly, the spirit of Elkdom is best portrayed in that sage saying 'For when the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He writes not that you won or lost, but how you played the game."

GERTRUDE EDERLE SWIMS ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

NOW 12 MILES FROM FRENCH COAST

Cape Gris Nez, Aug. 6.—At 1:04 P. M., 6 hours, 41 minutes after entering the water, Gertrude Ederle was 12 miles from the French coast in her first attempt of the season to swim the English Channel. Her zig-zag course, necessitated by tides and cross currents, had been about 14½ miles. A south wind promised to slow her progress somewhat.

Gertrude was struggling to reach and pass Varne Buoy, about six miles from the English coast and the scene of many failures to swim the channel. If she can reach and pass the buoy, her chance of completing the 20 mile passage would be good, since a new tide probably would assist her toward England. Many would-be channel swimmers have abandoned the swim at this point.

GIRL WITHIN 9 MILES OF GOAL

Aboard United Press Tug La Morinie, accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel, Aug. 6. —Gertrude Ederle was within nine miles of her goal and more than half the English Channel was behind her today at 1:39 P. M., after 6 hours and 30 minutes in the water on her second attempt to swim from France to England.

At that time Gertrude was 12 miles northeast of Cape Gris Nez, where she entered the water at 7:09 A. M. today, and nine miles from Dover. The water was becoming calmer and smoother than during the corresponding period in last year's attempt.

REGARD WEATHER CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE

Dover, England, Aug. 6.—(9:15 A. M.)—As word was received here that Miss Gertrude Ederle, American swimmer, was making an attempt to reach the English coast from France, weather conditions were regarded as unfavorable.

A southwest wind was blowing, indicating that heavy seas might arise in mid-channel.

Observers here said they believed Miss Ederle's chances were slim.

UNITED PRESS TUG WITH SWIMMER

The La Morinie, aboard which Minott Saunders is accompanying Gertrude Ederle in her attempt to swim the English Channel, is a United Press tug equipped with wireless by the United Press to handle the channel stories this season.

AT 3:20 P. M. MISS EDERLE 6½ MILES FROM HER GOAL

Aboard the United Press Tug La Morinie, accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel, Aug. 6.—At 3:20 P. M. Gertrude Ederle was 6½ miles from the English coast after 8 hours and one minute in the water.

At 2:39, the end of 7½ hours in the water, Gertrude stopped talking with her friends and relatives aboard the Lo Morinie and began plugging hard for the goal ahead. She told Helmy, the Egyptian, who swam with her at intervals, that she was still confident. Her spirit was good.

CHANNEL SWIM FACTS

Shortest straight line distance across channel, 20 miles.

Actual distance, from 35 to 40 miles, since tides make swimmer move forward in the fashion of a letter Z.

Fastest time, 16 hours, 33 minutes, set in 1923 by Sebastian Tiraboschi of Buenos Aires.

Slowest time, 27 hours, 25 minutes, set in 1923 by Harry Sullivan, American.

HEAVY RAIN IS SWEEPING CHANNEL

Dover, England, Aug. 6.—At 4.45 P. M. today Gertrude Ederle still was swimming in her effort to conquer the English Channel. At that time her position was two miles northwest of the Goodwin lightship and it was estimated that she was approximately seven miles southeast of Dover.

The sea is still fairly rough, but the southwest wind had slightly moderated. Heavy rain was sweeping the channel.

TIRING AFTER 10½ HOURS IN WATER

Aboard United Press Tug La Morinie, accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel, Aug. 6. —Gertrude Ederle was being swept down the coast and was slowly tiring at 5:39 after 10½ hours in the water.

It was feared that Gertrude would not be able to hold out long enough to catch the flood tide at 9 P. M. She was eating sugar to revive her strength.

Lillian Cannon, the Baltimore swimmer, who is Gertrude's principal rival for channel honors this year, was aboard the United Press tug, cheerfully watching her rival's remarkable performance in the water.

When Gertrude was 6½ miles off the English coast, at 3:10 P. M., Lillian sportingly donned a suit aboard the La Morinie and was rowed over to the Ederle tug. She dived from the deck into the water where Gertrude greeted her with a smile.

"Hello, Lillian," she said. "We are 50 miles from nowhere."

"Why, you are almost there," replied Lillian.

At 6 P. M. Gertrude had three miles of rough water and two miles of fairly smooth water to negotiate before walking ashore and to victory.

SLOWLY SWIMMING WESTWARD, TIDE AT EBB

Dover, England, Aug. 6.—At 7:45 P. M. today Gertrude Ederle was visible five or six miles away and slowly progressing westward. The tide was at ebb.

Observers here believed Gertrude would have a better chance if she were further westward and all were agreed that her feat already was tremendous owing to the rough water.

Owing to the irregularities of the coast line, Gertrude could be three miles off shore at St. Margaret's Bay and five miles off shore from Dover. St. Margaret's Bay is north of Dover.

GIRL SWIMMER NOW 3 MILES OFF SHORE

St. Margaret's Bay, England, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle was about 3 miles off the English shore but inside the Goodwin lightship at 8 P. M. today.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Ken Williams, garden tender for the St. Louis Browns, who slammed out his fourth homer in four days and his 15th of the season, aiding his teammates to win from the Philadelphia Athletics 7 to 5.

Babe Ruth carved the 34th notch on his bat, having clouted one over the fence in the first inning of a game in which the New York Yankees defeated Cleveland 8 to 2. Pitcher Jones held the Indians to seven hits.

The Chicago White Sox came out ahead in a colorless contest with the Boston Red Sox 7 to 2.

The New York Giants trounced the Cincinnati Reds for the ninth straight time 7 to 4. Freddie Lindstrom of the Giants made four hits and four runs in four times at bat.

Although the St. Louis Cardinals got 16 hits off Petty and McGraw it took the Red Birds ten innings to win from Brooklyn 11 to 9. Southworth knocked out a circuit drive for the Missourians.

The Pittsburgh Pirates spurted in the fifth to take the game away from the Boston Braves 4 to 3.

The Chicago Cubs slumbered for seven innings, but woke up in the eighth, scoring three in that frame and three more in the next to wallop Philadelphia 6 to 1.

Hitting Rosy Ryan, Toledo pitcher, consistently, Louisville continued its winning streak yesterday and defeated the Mudhens 6 to 4. Tincup on the hill for the Colonels allowed 10 hits but kept them well scattered with men on bases.

After losing three straight to Indianapolis Milwaukee found Kansas City easy and the Brewers won 7 to 5.

In the only other game scheduled Indianapolis defeated Columbus in a slugfest 11 to 7.

SAYS AMERICANS NOT LOOKED UPON AS MONEY GRABBERS

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Discounting statements that European nations look upon America as the world's shylock, H. Hall, inspector general of the British consulate here today, on an extended tour of this country, said he did not believe Americans were looked upon "as money grabbers, with no purpose in view except the dollars."

"Great Britain owes America much money, which will be paid. Just because Europe is indebted heavily to the United States is no reason why those nations should mistreat your citizens," the British representative said.

ANTICIPATES NO POLITICAL BLOOD WILL BE SHED

Milwaukee, Aug. 6.—(UP)—"I am not anticipating that any political blood will be shed between the rival candidates for United States senator over the question as to what candidate for governor may be endorsed by Gov. Blaine or by Senator Lenroot," Charles B. Perry, republican gubernatorial candidate, declared here today.

REACTION IN STOCKS PROVES BREATHING SPELL

New York, Aug. 6.—(UP)—As most observers expected Thursday's reaction proved to be a breathing spell for the market and the advance was resumed today. Speculative confidence was greatly strengthened by the indication of growing public participation which resulted in a broadening of the buying movement throughout the list.

Atchison achieved the best levels of its history, while vigorous advances occurred in Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Case Threshing, Advance Rumely and International Harvester.

New York Central sold at its highest price since 1909.

The market closed higher.

"Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's father, Don Jose, terribly disillusioned by the shameless mesalliances of his faithless wife, leaves this legacy of advice to his son: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love when it pleases you. Take it scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time, envied by all men, adored by all women. Lucretia Borgia, at the peak of her notorious power in Rome, expresses a desire to meet him. Meanwhile, two admirers fight over him.

Slender, elegant, handsome, confident—Pedrillo watched him enviously as he crossed the polished floor.

Most men, Pedrillo told himself, would have been a bit anxious about that situation. The sister of a powerful duke and the mistress of that same important noble, both madly in love, jealous, angry because he had kept them waiting—Pedrillo thanked his stars that he did not have to face them and make explanations.

He should have known that Don Juan never bothered to explain anything, but let his conduct explain itself.

Juan, facing the two women from the doorway, looked at each and spoke meaningly.

"Love lent my feet wings," he

"Your husband is even now almost at my gates," he told her.

said, and each one, taking it for herself, let anger slip away from her and contentment take its place.

He looked at them both again, and smiled, but his smile was not for them. For the situation, rather. For an instant his thoughts ran as Pedrillo's had run. The sister of a powerful duke—the beloved of that same important nobleman—and behind the closed door the wife of that same haughty Roman.

Juan smiled again, contemptuously, and his smile embraced all women.

Involuntarily he glanced back over his shoulder toward the door of his private rooms. Too bad that the third woman could not join these two for the moment! Imperia, catching that glance, took a hasty step toward that other door, but Juan was quicker than she, and stopped her flight, catching her hand. He pressed it and glanced toward Trusia. Nodding, the older woman sank into a chair, and Juan went to the girl's side.

Bending over her until his lips touched her perfumed hair, he whispered:

"Your brother has learned that you are here, and is on his way to see if it is true."

Terrified, she opened her lips to speak, but he shook his head at her, cautioning her to be silent, and frightened, she let him escort her to the door.

There he took her hand in his and kissed it. Looking up at her, he whispered ardently:

"Your hand is a little, trembling dove. Tomorrow, at the same hour?"

Shyly she nodded, turned and ran out. And Juan, his eyes bright with amusement, turned back to the haughty Imperia.

She, too, was amused, delighted with the manner in which Don Juan had got rid of Trusia, curious to know what he had said to her. Her amusement soon vanished.

He bent over her, as he had bent over Trusia, and he spoke of the same man, and in the same way.

"The Duke Margoni is on his way here," he said briefly.

Imperia rose hastily, as terrified as Trusia had been. It was well enough to enjoy the presence of Don Juan, but after all, one had to think of one's bread and wine. Unconsciously her hands flew to the ropes of pearls twisted about her throat, the Duke's latest gift. She turned to go, hesitated an instant—if only she could be sure of Juan's love she would throw the pearls at the Duke's feet and be rid of him. Another glance at Juan told her anew what folly that would be. Yet even in her flight she could not help stopping for an instant, could not help losing her fear for a moment in happiness, as he bent to kiss her hand, murmuring:

"Your hand is a little, fluttering dove. Tomorrow, at the same hour?"

She nodded, and then, suddenly terrified again, hurried out to her palanquin.

Juan, lazily stretching his arms over his head, sauntered back into the room from the anteroom door. Now, if only the woman in the bedroom would go—

"Juan!" she called, softly. He shrugged his shoulders. If he could meet just one woman who knew when to leave! He went on into the inner room, stood, bored, while Eleanora, wife of the Duke Margoni, threw her arms around him and kissed him eagerly. He must be rid of her, at once!

And again he resorted to his ruse. "The Duke Margoni is even now at my gates." Then he whispered, "Tomorrow, at the same hour?"

She nodded, turned to go. Juan sighed with relief.

Relief based on ignorance of the fact that Imperia had just returned hastily to his house, cold with fear, to hide behind the heavy tapestries of the anteroom door. Also on ignorance of another fact—that the Duke Margoni was making his lie a truth, and was indeed at the gates at that moment.

CHAPTER III

Thinking that Eleanora had taken her leave, Juan sauntered across the room, paused with his back to the door and stood looking at one of the trifles on his table, a tiny lamp picked up in the ruins of an old city, which had always interested him.

"Margoni, without knowing it, served us well," he remarked. Pedrillo, nodding, glanced toward the door, and stood as if petrified. For there in the doorway stood Margoni himself, bristling with rage. And Juan, quite unconscious of the disaster that threatened, commented quite audibly, "Pompous old donkey!" and went on fingering the little lamp.

Pedrillo coughed loudly, warningly. Juan glanced up, followed his servant's slight jerk of the head, and turned to see Margoni, his face fairly purple with anger, glaring at him.

Pedrillo shivered. What on earth would Don Juan do? Juan had no such doubts of his own ability. Smiling, he strode forward, hand outstretched, to greet the duke.

Margoni ignored his friendliness. "I have been told that the Duchess, my wife, is here," he said, and his voice was thick with anger, so that he could hardly speak.

Juan, smiling, assured him that he was mistaken, thinking that he was telling the truth, that Eleanora had already gone. Meanwhile she was moving frantically about the bedroom, not knowing just where her husband was.

Margoni, glancing about the room, saw the bedroom door, and through it caught a glimpse of his wife. Too furious for words, he made a strange sound, more like the snarl of an irate animal than any human sound. Juan, realizing what had happened, followed the Duke's glance to the bedroom door, looked away—and straight into a mirror, which reflected Imperia peeping between the curtains at the anteroom door!

A sardonic smile flashed across his face. Then, turning to the Duke again, quickly, he caught the man's arm.

"Do not let her see you!" he exclaimed, swinging the man around. Margoni, amazed, forgot to be angry. Juan pointed to the mirror, and the Duke, obeying the gesture, saw what Juan had seen—Imperia huddled fearfully behind the heavy curtains.

GERTRUDE EDERLE SWIMS ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

NOW 12 MILES FROM FRENCH COAST

Cape Gris Nez, Aug. 6.—At 1:04 P. M., 6 hours, 41 minutes after entering the water, Gertrude Ederle was 12 miles from the French coast in her first attempt of the season to swim the English Channel. Her zig-zag course, necessitated by tides and cross currents, had been about 14½ miles. A south wind promised to slow her progress somewhat.

Gertrude was struggling to reach and pass Varne Buoy, about six miles from the English coast and the scene of many failures to swim the channel. If she can reach and pass the buoy, her chance of completing the 20 mile passage would be good, since a new tide probably would assist her toward England. Many would-be channel swimmers have abandoned the swim at this point.

GIRL WITHIN 9 MILES OF GOAL

Aboard United Press Tug La Morinie, accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle was within nine miles of her goal and more than half the English Channel was behind her today at 1:39 P. M., after 6 hours and 30 minutes in the water on her second attempt to swim from France to England.

At that time Gertrude was 12 miles northeast of Cape Gris Nez, where she entered the water at 7:09 A. M. today, and nine miles from Dover. The water was becoming calmer and smoother than during the corresponding period in last year's attempt.

REGARD WEATHER CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE

Dover, England, Aug. 6.—(9:15 A. M.)—As word was received here that Miss Gertrude Ederle, American swimmer, was making an attempt to reach the English coast from France, weather conditions were regarded as unfavorable.

A southwest wind was blowing, indicating that heavy seas might arise in mid-channel.

Observers here said they believed Miss Ederle's chances were slim.

UNITED PRESS TUG WITH SWIMMER

The La Morinie, aboard which Minott Saunders is accompanying Gertrude Ederle in her attempt to swim the English Channel, is a United Press tug equipped with wireless by the United Press to handle the channel stories this season.

AT 3:20 P. M. MISS EDERLE 6½ MILES FROM HER GOAL

Aboard the United Press Tug La Morinie, accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel, Aug. 6.—At 3:20 P. M. Gertrude Ederle was 6½ miles from the English coast after 8 hours and one minute in the water.

At 2:39, the end of 7½ hours in the water, Gertrude stopped talking with her friends and relatives aboard the Lo Morinie and began plugging hard for the goal ahead. She told Helmy, the Egyptian, who swam with her at intervals, that she was still confident. Her spirit was good.

CHANNEL SWIM FACTS

Shortest straight line distance across channel, 20 miles.

Actual distance, from 35 to 40 miles, since tides make swimmer move forward in the fashion of a letter Z.

Fastest time, 16 hours, 33 minutes, set in 1923 by Sebastian Tiraboschi of Buenos Aires.

Slowest time, 27 hours, 25 minutes, set in 1923 by Harry Sullivan, American.

HEAVY RAIN IS SWEEPING CHANNEL

Dover, England, Aug. 6.—At 4.45 P. M. today Gertrude Ederle still was swimming in her effort to conquer the English Channel. At that time her position was two miles northwest of the Goodwin lightship and it was estimated that she was approximately seven miles southeast of Dover.

The sea is still fairly rough, but the southwest wind had slightly moderated. Heavy rain was sweeping the channel.

TIRING AFTER 10½ HOURS IN WATER

Aboard United Press Tug La Morinie, accompanying Gertrude Ederle across the English Channel, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle was being swept down the coast and was slowly tiring at 5:39 after 10½ hours in the water.

It was feared that Gertrude would not be able to hold out long enough to catch the flood tide at 9 P. M. She was eating sugar to revive her strength.

Lillian Cannon, the Baltimore swimmer, who is Gertrude's principal rival for channel honors this year, was aboard the United Press tug, cheerfully watching her rival's remarkable performance in the water.

When Gertrude was 6½ miles off the English coast, at 3:10 P. M., Lillian sportingly donned a suit aboard the La Morinie and was rowed over to the Ederle tug. She dived from the deck into the water where Gertrude greeted her with a smile.

"Hello, Lillian," she said. "We are 50 miles from nowhere."

"Why, you are almost there," replied Lillian.

At 6 P. M. Gertrude had three miles of rough water and two miles of fairly smooth water to negotiate before walking ashore and to victory.

SLOWLY SWIMMING WESTWARD, TIDE AT EBB

Dover, England, Aug. 6.—At 7:45 P. M. today Gertrude Ederle was visible five or six miles away and slowly progressing westward. The tide was at ebb.

Observers here believed Gertrude would have a better chance if she were further westward and all were agreed that her feat already was tremendous owing to the rough water.

Owing to the irregularities of the coast line, Gertrude could be three miles off shore at St. Margaret's Bay and five miles off shore from Dover. St. Margaret's Bay is north of Dover.

GIRL SWIMMER NOW 3 MILES OFF SHORE

St. Margaret's Bay, England, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle was about 3 miles off the English shore but inside the Goodwin lightship at 8 P. M. today.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Ken Williams, garden tender for the St. Louis Browns, who slammed out his fourth homer in four days and his 15th of the season, aiding his teammates to win from the Philadelphia Athletics 7 to 5.

Babe Ruth carved the 34th notch on his bat, having clouted one over the fence in the first inning of a game in which the New York Yankees defeated Cleveland 8 to 2. Pitcher Jones held the Indians to seven hits.

The Chicago White Sox came out ahead in a colorless contest with the Boston Red Sox 7 to 2.

The New York Giants trounced the Cincinnati Reds for the ninth straight time 7 to 4. Freddie Lindstrom of the Giants made four hits and four runs in four times at bat.

Although the St. Louis Cardinals got 16 hits off Petty and McGraw it took the Red Birds ten innings to win from Brooklyn 11 to 9. Southworth knocked out a circuit drive for the Missourians.

The Pittsburgh Pirates spurted in the fifth to take the game away from the Boston Braves 4 to 3.

The Chicago Cubs slumbered for seven innings, but woke up in the eighth, scoring three in that frame and three more in the next to wallop Philadelphia 6 to 1.

Hitting Rosy Ryan, Toledo pitcher, consistently, Louisville continued its winning streak yesterday and defeated the Mudhens 6 to 4. Tincup on the hill for the Colonels allowed 10 hits but kept them well scattered with men on bases.

After losing three straight to Indianapolis Milwaukee found Kansas City easy and the Brewers won 7 to 5.

In the only other game scheduled Indianapolis defeated Columbus in a slugfest 11 to 7.

SAYS AMERICANS NOT LOOKED UPON AS MONEY GRABBERS

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Discounting statements that European nations look upon America as the world's shylock, H. Hall, inspector general of the British consulate here today, on an extended tour of this country, said he did not believe Americans were looked upon "as money grabbers, with no purpose in view except the dollars."

"Great Britain owes America much money, which will be paid. Just because Europe is indebted heavily to the United States is no reason why those nations should mistreat your citizens," the British representative said.

ANTICIPATES NO POLITICAL BLOOD WILL BE SHED

Milwaukee, Aug. 6.—(UP)—"I am not anticipating that any political blood will be shed between the rival candidates for United States senator over the question as to what candidate for governor may be endorsed by Gov. Blaine or by Senator Lenroot," Charles B. Perry, republican gubernatorial candidate, declared here today.

REACTION IN STOCKS PROVES BREATHING SPELL

New York, Aug. 6.—(UP)—As most observers expected Thursday's reaction proved to be a breathing spell for the market and the advance was resumed today. Speculative confidence was greatly strengthened by the indication of growing public participation which resulted in a broadening of the buying movement throughout the list.

Atchison achieved the best levels of its history, while vigorous advances occurred in Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Case Threshing, Advance Rumely and International Harvester.

New York Central sold at its highest price since 1909.

The market closed higher.

"Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's father, Don Jose, terribly disillusioned by the shameless mesalliances of his faithless wife, leaves this legacy of advice to his son: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love when it pleases you. Take it scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time, envied by all men, adored by all women. Lucretia Borgia, at the peak of her notorious power in Rome, expresses a desire to meet him. Meanwhile, two admirers fight over him.

Slender, elegant, handsome, confident—Pedrillo watched him enviously as he crossed the polished floor.

Most men, Pedrillo told himself, would have been a bit anxious about that situation. The sister of a powerful duke and the mistress of that same important noble, both madly in love, jealous, angry because he had kept them waiting—Pedrillo thanked his stars that he did not have to face them and make explanations.

He should have known that Don Juan never bothered to explain anything, but let his conduct explain itself.

Juan, facing the two women from the doorway, looked at each and spoke meaningly.

"Love lent my feet wings," he

"Your husband is even now almost at my gates," he told her.

said, and each one, taking it for herself, let anger slip away from her and contentment take its place.

He looked at them both again, and smiled, but his smile was not for them. For the situation, rather. For an instant his thoughts ran as Pedrillo's had run. The sister of a powerful duke—the beloved of that same important nobleman—and behind the closed door the wife of that same haughty Roman.

Juan smiled again, contemptuously, and his smile embraced all women.

Involuntarily he glanced back over his shoulder toward the door of his private rooms. Too bad that the third woman could not join these two for the moment! Imperia, catching that glance, took a hasty step toward that other door, but Juan was quicker than she, and stopped her flight, catching her hand. He pressed it and glanced toward Trusia. Nodding, the older woman sank into a chair, and Juan went to the girl's side.

Bending over her until his lips touched her perfumed hair, he whispered:

"Your brother has learned that you are here, and is on his way to see if it is true."

Terrified, she opened her lips to speak, but he shook his head at her, cautioning her to be silent, and frightened, she let him escort her to the door.

There he took her hand in his and kissed it. Looking up at her, he whispered ardently:

"Your hand is a little, trembling dove. Tomorrow, at the same hour?"

Shyly she nodded, turned and ran out. And Juan, his eyes bright with amusement, turned back to the haughty Imperia.

She, too, was amused, delighted with the manner in which Don Juan had got rid of Trusia, curious to know what he had said to her. Her amusement soon vanished.

He bent over her, as he had bent over Trusia, and he spoke of the same man, and in the same way.

"The Duke Margoni is on his way here," he said briefly.

Imperia rose hastily, as terrified as Trusia had been. It was well enough to enjoy the presence of Don Juan, but after all, one had to think of one's bread and wine. Unconsciously her hands flew to the ropes of pearls twisted about her throat, the Duke's latest gift. She turned to go, hesitated an instant—if only she could be sure of Juan's love she would throw the pearls at the Duke's feet and be rid of him. Another glance at Juan told her anew what folly that would be. Yet even in her flight she could not help stopping for an instant, could not help losing her fear for a moment in happiness, as he bent to kiss her hand, murmuring:

"Your hand is a little, fluttering dove. Tomorrow, at the same hour?"

She nodded, and then, suddenly terrified again, hurried out to her palanquin.

Juan, lazily stretching his arms over his head, sauntered back into the room from the anteroom door. Now, if only the woman in the bedroom would go—

"Juan!" she called, softly. He shrugged his shoulders. If he could meet just one woman who knew when to leave! He went on into the inner room, stood, bored, while Eleanora, wife of the Duke Margoni, threw her arms around him and kissed him eagerly. He must be rid of her, at once!

And again he resorted to his ruse. "The Duke Margoni is even now at my gates." Then he whispered, "Tomorrow, at the same hour?"

She nodded, turned to go. Juan sighed with relief.

Relief based on ignorance of the fact that Imperia had just returned hastily to his house, cold with fear, to hide behind the heavy tapestries of the anteroom door. Also on ignorance of another fact—that the Duke Margoni was making his lie a truth, and was indeed at the gates at that moment.

CHAPTER III

Thinking that Eleanora had taken her leave, Juan sauntered across the room, paused with his back to the door and stood looking at one of the trifles on his table, a tiny lamp picked up in the ruins of an old city, which had always interested him.

"Margoni, without knowing it, served us well," he remarked. Pedrillo, nodding, glanced toward the door, and stood as if petrified. For there in the doorway stood Margoni himself, bristling with rage. And Juan, quite unconscious of the disaster that threatened, commented quite audibly, "Pompous old donkey!" and went on fingering the little lamp.

Pedrillo coughed loudly, warningly. Juan glanced up, followed his servant's slight jerk of the head, and turned to see Margoni, his face fairly purple with anger, glaring at him.

Pedrillo shivered. What on earth would Don Juan do? Juan had no such doubts of his own ability. Smiling, he strode forward, hand outstretched, to greet the duke.

Margoni ignored his friendliness.

"I have been told that the Duchess, my wife, is here," he said, and his voice was thick with anger, so that he could hardly speak.

Juan, smiling, assured him that he was mistaken, thinking that he was telling the truth, that Eleanora had already gone. Meanwhile she was moving frantically about the bedroom, not knowing just where her husband was.

Margoni, glancing about the room, saw the bedroom door, and through it caught a glimpse of his wife. Too furious for words, he made a strange sound, more like the snarl of an irate animal than any human sound. Juan, realizing what had happened, followed the Duke's glance to the bedroom door, looked away—and straight into a mirror, which reflected Imperia peeping between the curtains at the anteroom door!

A sardonic smile flashed across his face. Then, turning to the Duke again, quickly, he caught the man's arm.

"Do not let her see you!" he exclaimed, swinging the man around. Margoni, amazed, forgot to be angry. Juan pointed to the mirror, and the Duke, obeying the gesture, saw what Juan had seen—Imperia huddled fearfully behind the heavy curtains.
